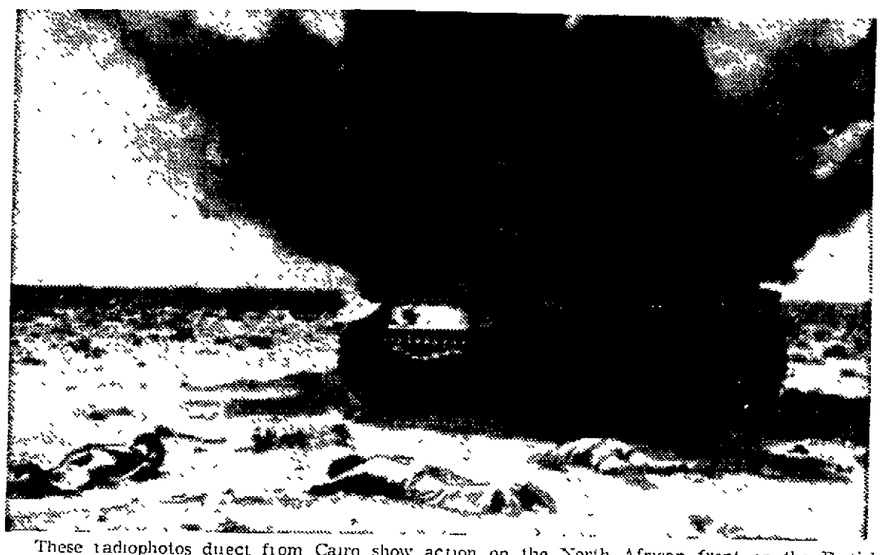
BATTLE INSIDE ROMMEL LINE

As British Eighth Army Chases Nazis, Italians Across Desert



These radiophotos duect from Cairo show action on the North African front as the British Eighth army pursued the fleeing Afrika Korps of Marshal Rommel. Photo at left shows British armored cars advancing toward an Axis position in spite of heavy shells exploding dangerously near In photo at right Aussies are seen ducking as ammunition in a disabled German tank starts exploding as a result of a fire started by hits from an Allied tank buster.

British Wedge Through Axis Desert Forces

Allied Tanks Nip Heels Of Retreating Foe As Enemy Admits Advance Nears Matruh, 104 Miles West Of Alamein; 13,000 Prisoners Captured.

BULLETIN

CAIRO—(UP)—The imperial Eighth army, driving the battered Afrika Korps back toward Libya, has knocked out one-half or more of the Nazi armored strength and now threatens six Italian divisions with complete encirclement and capture.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — President Roosevelt declared today the Allied drive in North Africa appears to be a victory of major importance. He told his press conference that all of the United Nations were very much heartened by what looks to be a victory of major importance in the Egyptian-Libyan area.

(By Associated Press)

CAIRO—Three fast armored divisions of the British Eighth army led by Lieut. Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery have driven two wedges through Marshal Rommel's forces and are fighting inside enemy positions.

The Axis high command conceded that the Allied offensive was nearing Matruh, 104 miles west of the old El Alamein battleline, but the British said officially only that the battle had been carried "well west of El Daba," 33 miles from El Alamein.

Tanks were operating at the heels of the Axis retreat in the El Daba sector, a British communique said.

Portions of Rommel's armies which managed to escape the tank wedging and encirclement were said by Montgomery to be in full retreat.

This situation—of deep tank thrusts encirclement and hammering pursuit—suggested that the fate of the German-Italian North African corps might well be sealed before the surviving portions could retreat across the Egyptian border some 150 miles farther west.

Montgomery told of the armored penetrations when he received correspondents at his desert headquarters yesterday to announce complete and absolute victory in the battle of El Alamein.

(A well-informed British source at London said of the land offensive that "there is reason to believe that our armored forces now have succeeded in getting behind some of the retreating German and Italian forces and that their retreat is virtually cut off

("There are high hopes that we may be able to annihilate them completely without having to chase them across the Libyan desert as in other advances.")

The steady liquidation of Rommel's forces was recorded today in the official disclosure that his losses by capture alone now total more than 13,000 men and that at least 339 of his tanks have been knocked out.

The full measure of Rommel's defeat was indicated in a British communique which told of a roundup of large numbers of Italians afoot, apparently abandoned in their inland positions while the Germans on wheels or caterpillar tracks tried to save themselves by flight along the coastal road.

Axis Fears of Invasion Growing Acute

ALLIES MASS SHIPS, PLANES

Stockholm Reports Tanks at Gibraltar, Too, as Nazis Get Jittery at Rumors.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Axis invasion fears today appeared to be reaching an acute stage, spurred by a huge concentration of naval strength, transports and planes at Gibraltar and the growing magnitude of the British victory in Egypt.

A Stockholm report from Madrid said that "vast quantities of tanks and planes" have been massed at Gibraltar, presumably for the intention of "opening a second front in Europe with Gibraltar as the base

The German radio circulated anxious reports that seven more British destroyers have steamed into Gibraltar, bringing the total Allied naval strength at the western Mediterranean base to 125 ships, including the battleship Rodney, three aircraft carriers, seven cruisers, 33 destroyers and large numbers of auxiliaries and transports.

The radio stations of Berlin, Rome and Vichy were circulating almost hourly reports and rumors of possible Allied moves at the western end of the Mediterranean or northwest Africa.

BATTLE FLARES

Gabbard To Contest Election of May in Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(INS)— The slim 511-vote victory of Rep. Andrew J May (D) in the Seventh Kentucky District erupted today into a full blown post-election battle, with charges of election skullduggery flying back and forth and the announcement that the defeated candidate would contest the election.

The loser was Dr. E. E. Gabbard, Republican, who charged that vote-buying has been plentiful.

"Whisky," he added, "was even more plentiful." Gabbard did not announce the contest, but his campaign committee did.

Dems, GOP Talk Plans For Victory Coalition

Would Unite Behind FDR To Prosecute War But Republicans Demand End To New Deal Experiments.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A movement developed on Capitol Hill today for a Republican-Democratic "victory coalition" to proclaim a holiday on politics and drive toward the one common aim of winning the war.

The alliance would throw the power of both parties behind President Roosevelt for the most effective prosecution of war, but the Republicans coupled their pledge of support with demands for an end to "New Deal politics and experiments."

"We are willing to forget the election if the administration will remember the implications it contained," said Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader

Another leading Republican, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, proposed the coalition, saying congress should create a "unified committee on war cooperation."

But while unity in the war effort appeared to be generally applauded, political observers watched for a possibility that house Republicans and conservative Democrats might develop a joint drive not only to halt "New Dealism" but to erase some of its established works.

The first post-election session of the house heard demands from a Democrat and a Republican for repeal of the National Labor Relations (Wagner) act and the wage-hour law. On the other side of the capitol, Sena-

'COMMANDOS' GET ORDERS

Do Job Quickly, Overlook No One in War Chest Offensive, General Tells Them.

"Perform your tasks quickly, overlook no one and success will be ours."

This formed the plea of Major General Fred B. Hout to scores of Commandos, part of the army of 500 who will carry on an intensive three-day "blitzkrieg" over Mansfield to raise the $140,377 Community War Chest beginning Monday.

He spoke at a mass meeting of Commandos last night at John Simpson auditorium.

They were told that "zero hour" will be 8:30 a. m. Monday at a mobilization at the Madison theater. Last-minute instructions will go out then.

The Commandos were supplied with ammunition in the form of pledge cards, stickers, buttons and other materials they will use in the offensive.

There will be several "surprise" features at the theater meeting Hout told the Commandos who will depart immediately from that sesson for a full three days of wide scale operations

Paul W. Endriss, a member of the Commandos board of strategy, spoke briefly at last night's meeting, explaining what had been done in the way of publicity and advertising to pave the way for their offensive.

War Chest headquarters today announced that in addition to the bales of placards, posters and other materials being posted throughout the city 8,000 stickers are to be placed in Mansfield stores tomorrow for posting on all packages.

They carry the Commando theme of "For home and country —give an hour's pay each month."

He explained that the military training received by the men released would enable them to become valuable additions to the ranks of special police guarding the country's war plants.

Takes Up Purchase of Ten Sirens Tonight

Civilian Defense Council To Study Greater Mansfield Alarm System, Hear Reports On Block Plan.

Purchase of 10 air-raid signal alarm sirens will be considered at tonight's meeting of Mansfield's Civilian Defense council, acting on recommendation of the technical committee headed by James A. McDermid which found factory whistles and other mediums inadequate.

Sirens in sufficient number to cover the Greater Mansfield area, embracing South Boulevards, East Mansfield Lincoln Heights and Roseland, will be requested, Judge G E Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator, indicated today. The type selected by the McDermid committee cost slightly in excess of $300 each, it is understood, and have been proven successful in many large cities

Attorney Glenn W Marriott, chief warden, will report on the progress of zone leaders and wardens—the latter including 25 or more women—in establishing sector posts and block-to-block enlistment of men women and teen-age girls and boys in active support of the defense program.

"Realizing two months ago or more that voluntary community response had failed to meet requirements," Marriott and Kalbfleisch announced today, "the direct-contact recruiting program was adopted then It has moved along satisfactorily, and in advance of the block plan advocated today by the state defense council Nearly 100 women registered for last week-end's war protection

LAST CURTAIN

Cohan Rites To Be Held at Cathedral Saturday.

NEW YORK—George M. Cohan, one of the great figures of the American theater, will be buried tomorrow in the family mausoleum in Woodlawn cemetery, the Bronx.

A solemn requiem mass will be offered at 10 a. m. in St. Patrick's cathedral for the composer of some of America's best-known songs including "Over There," "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy," and "You're a Grand Old Flag." He died yesterday at the age of 64.

"A beloved figure is lost to our national life in the passing of your husband," President Roosevelt telegraphed Mrs. Cohan. "He will be mourned by millions whose lives were brightened and whose burdens were eased by his genius as a funmaker and as a dispeller of gloom. My heartfelt sympathy to you and all the family."

ATTRITION: Reds Bleed Foe In Stalingrad, Nalchik Areas

(By United Press)

MOSCOW — The Soviet army routed German forces around a Stalingrad factory today, while slowly bleeding the pinned-down Nazis southeast of Nalchik in the Caucasus.

The defenders of Stalingrad smashed every German attack, and, on the limited sector where they routed the Germans, advanced. Soviet bombers streaked out and bombed German positions and troop concentrations.

"On another sector, large enemy forces attacked artillery positions, but were driven back after Soviet gunners over open sights had destroyed eight tanks. Soviet airmen bombed battle formations, destroyed seven artillery and six mortar batteries and partly wiped out a company," the Soviet noon communique said

This was the 75th day of the battle of Stalingrad, which the defenders have held against almost impossible odds. Tomorrow is the 25th anniversary of the Russian revolution—the Soviet's Fourth of July—and the defenders wrote to Premier Joseph Stalin, pledging to defend the city that was named after him "to the last drop of our blood and our last breath."

Northwest of Stalingrad, Soviet artillery blew up 14 enemy pillboxes and silenced a number of guns On another sector, Soviet scouts attacked the Germans from behind, destroyed 13 supply carts and killed 40 enemy soldiers.

TWO-PRONGED: Stab At Japs On Two Sides Of Guadalcanal

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Hard-pressed American forces stabbed at bolstered Japanese troops on Guadalcanal's broadening battlefront today in a two-pronged attack that pierced into one flank and threatened another.

To the west of the island's American-held airbase, marines and soldiers successfully attacked enemy positions, the navy reported yesterday, slaying 350 Japanese and capturing 12 37-mm. light artillery guns, three field pieces and 30 machine guns.

The offensive drive on Nov. 3 gained the American troops two additional miles of jungle. But a similar attempt to smash enemy concentrations to the east of the airfield on the following day was repulsed.

The Nipponese forces, put ashore on the coast east of the American base five days ago under cover of darkness, were reinforced by additional night landings Nov. 3 and 4, the navy explained.

It was this strengthened force apparently which the Americans attacked at dawn on Nov. 4, and met what the navy termed "an initial repulse."

"Marines are pressing their attack on these enemy troops," added the communique.

On another South Pacific war front west of the Solomons, Japanese invasion forces were continuing to fall back in New Guinea

Q. You said A or D ration book, we know that the A book is for privately owned automobiles but for whom is the D book?

A. The D book is for those who own motorcycles. However, the form for either the A or D book is the same.

Q. How much gas does an A book entitle one?

A. 16 gallons of gas each month.

Q. How is this allowance figured?

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Miss Shore sat on an invisible stool, in the midst of an acre or so of white lace hoopskirt spangled with silver. Miss Shore was very—

"Call me Dinah," she said, right off.

And there, before we get any further, you have it; the secret of her success. The girl can sing, she's the dream girl of every doughboy and gob with a pair of ears, and she can put over a song like an angel. But what she's got that so many haven't got is that friendly warmth, and it gets into her songs. We'll call her Dinah, shore 'nuff.

Coons

DINAH, then, from Nashville, Tenn., was very fetchin', sitting there, in her acre of hoopskirt with the spangles. She was resting in the shade of a huge magnolia tree, loaded with bloom, and a tireless fountain tinkled nearby. It was the ideal setting for a Dinah from Nashville, Tenn.

"I think," she said chattily, "I'm playing a Yankee girl in this."

It was a big stage number for "Thank Your Lucky Stars," the extra-big musical in which Warner Bros. is spotting all its stars, including Bette Davis, along with Eddie Cantor and Dinah Shore.

But Dinah only thought she was playing a Yankee girl. She couldn't be sure. Neither could anybody else, for the picture was under way on six stages, and little matters like who was playing what could wait. LeRoy Prinz was directing this number, but Davis Butler was master of the whole production.

What Dinah was playing, even though it be a Yankee girl, was of small moment beside the fact that Dinah was playing at all. It's the first time the No. 1 girl of radio has looked at a movie offer. "I'm here," she answered that one, "because they said I'd have a chance to act—and I've always wanted to act."

SHE'S doing that, and more. She's dancing. First time since she was in school at Nashville. She finished at Vanderbilt, you know. Got a B. S. in sociology, but she'd wanted a singing career ever since she was 14, when she was still Frances Rose Shore. She was re-named by schoolmates first, as she recalls, for the same reason the networks later did it: the constancy with which she sang "Dinah."

But singing, dancing, acting, Dinah still isn't sure she'll see her first movie. "I see the rushes just a little," she said, "but not too much. I want to keep my ego."

There are strange things, you see, about pictures. Like recording a song, and then "acting" it for the camera. "I just can't get used to singing it the same way every time. I don't feel the same way every time."

And Dinah rolled her big brown eyes, and smiled her big warm smile. We'll call her Dinah, shore 'nuff, and you can bet that Hollywood will be calling Dinah back.

FLYNN ACCUSER TELLS WHY SHE DIDN'T SCREAM

Says Engines Made Too Much Noise and She Was Too Busy Fighting.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES—Pretty Peggy La Rue Satterlee, 16, the Hollywood night club dancer who says there's no use screaming if no one can hear you, was called to the witness stand again today at the preliminary hearing of Errol Flynn, the tall and handsome film actor accused of her statutory rape and that of another teen-age girl.

Miss Satterlee already has related to an attentive courtroom, filled with women, her version of what occurred during that now-famous cruise to Santa Catalina island aboard Flynn's yacht in August, 1941.

She testified that Flynn walked into her stateroom as the vessel was anchored off the island, and said he wanted to talk.

"Then he got in bed," she asserted

She was asked by Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler why she had not screamed for help.

"There was a kind of motor going next to my room," she said, "and I didn't think I could be heard above it. I also realized the others were friends of Mr. Flynn, and besides that, the crew was up front.

She added that "I believe I slapped him on the nose. I might have kicked him, but I don't think so. I cried."

Flynn also is charged with the statutory rape of blond Betty Hansen, 17, formerly of Lincoln, Neb.

Miss Satterlee said the actor attacked her twice during the cruise, but that she didn't tell anyone else aboard and continued to be friendly with the actor "because I didn't want to embarrass myself with people I didn't know."

The second alleged attack, she testified, took place in Flynn's stateroom where she said she had gone willingly after he had invited her to view the moon "through a porthole." This, she said, was on the homeward trip.

"I was fighting and kicking. I tried to prevent him. He kept pushing me back on the bed. I kicked the curtain down, I remember."

"Why didn't you scream?" Giesler asked.

"I was too interested in fighting," she replied.

ALL PLEDGED TO AID WAR EFFORT

Ohio's Congressmen-Elect In Accord on Issue; Seven Are Novices.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — All of Ohio's congressmen-elect, including seven newcomers without previous law-making experience in the national capitol, are pledged to an all-out war effort for speedy victory and winning the peace to follow.

Of the eight new Republican members, Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville, 18th district, is the only one having previous congressional experience. Lewis, who served one term a few years back, says he'll strive for a realistic approach to solution of post-war problems.

Walter E. Brehm, Logan dentist, who unseated Democrat Harold K. Claypool of Chillicothe, in the 11th district, says he is interested in bringing about development of the natural resources of southeastern Ohio, particularly in the field of plastics. Such development, he said, would remove the "ghost towns" in that area where 43.7 per cent of the entire population once was depending on relief programs.

Harry P. Jeffrey, Dayton attorney, member-elect in the 3rd district, favors creation of an international system to prevent future wars.

Homer Ramey of Toledo, the new congressman for the 9th district, wants no exploitation of soldiers or citizens either during or after the war. Ed Rowe of Akron, the 14th district's new member, favors a drive to "lessen the trend toward centralized administrative government."

3 GERMAN ALIENS WHO ESCAPED PRISON TRAIN HUNTED BY FBI

BULLETIN

BOWLING GREEN, Ky.—(AP)—Police Chief R. E. Monahan reported today that three Germans who escaped from army guards aboard a train late Tuesday had been arrested in a barn about six miles from here.

(By International News Service)

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Three German-born enemy aliens who escaped from a prison train while being transported from Fort Meade, Md., to Camp Forrest, Tenn., were objects of a widespread hunt today by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and officers of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Herbert K. Moss, FBI agent in charge at Louisville, announced the search and urged citizens to be on the lookout and notify the FBI if the fugitives are sighted. He said 2nd Army authorities had been notified and that military representatives had joined in the search.

It had not been learned whether the men leaped from the moving train or escaped when the train made one or two stops between Nashville and Camp Forrest. The FBI statement described the men as:

Paul Theodore Hutzegrad, 35, 5 feet 5 inches, blond hair, gray-blue eyes and weight 130 pounds. A former cook, he speaks German and English.

Karl Luft, 19, 5 feet 6 inches, brown hair, 163 pounds. A former sailor, he speaks little English.

Hans Richard Jonat, 27, 5 feet 7 inches, blue eyes, blond hair, tatoo on right arm. He speaks little English and formerly was a motor man on an ocean ship.

The men wore green-dyed army pants and shirts and may have been wearing civilian overcoats. They were unarmed when they escaped early yesterday and were believed to be without funds.

Nine other enemy alien prisoners were aboard the train, the FBI said.

ASK PAY HIKE

Garbage Truck Drivers and Helpers Seeking Raise.

Fifteen truck drivers and helpers in the city garbage department have filed a petition with council asking for an "increase in pay equal to the advance in the cost of living," making three municipal departments already asking wage boosts.

Ernest Price and Fred Snyder, salaried employes of the sewer department, ask increases of $25 monthly on their pay checks.

Employes in other departments are expected to seek corresponding increases.

Last week the police department started the wage war with a petition asking a flat $25 boost for all members and on Monday a similar petition was filed by the fire department.

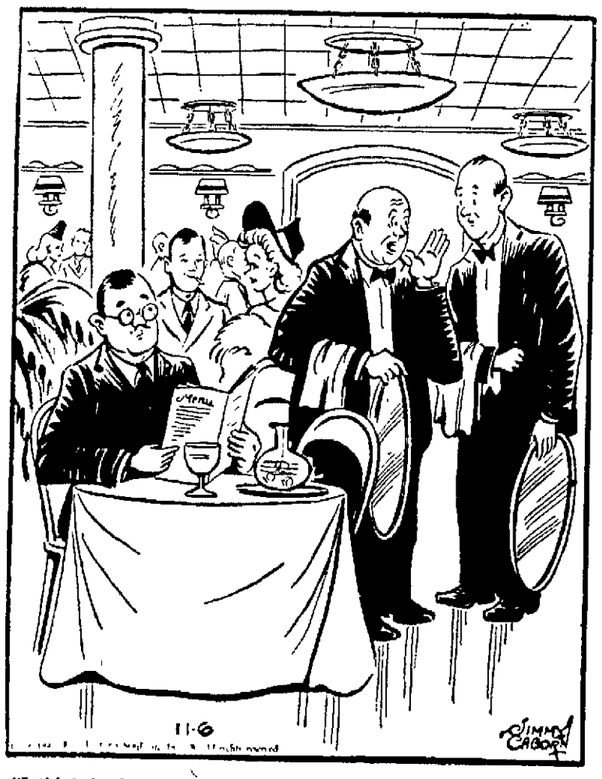
Laff-a-Day



"I think he has me confused with some spy. He wants to know if I had the European plan!"

Hout. Dorothy Bernhard, 337 Hammond avenue, parked her car near Fourth and Mulberry streets to mail a letter at the postoffice. When the brakes let go the car rolled north on Mulberry to near West Fifth street where it collided with the parked car of Harold Grandon, 661 Springmill street. Fronts of both cars were damaged.

FDR LEADERS EYE FEELING OF CONGRESS

Forecast Reorganized Houses Will Favor Plan, Agree on Military Matters.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration economic chieftains forecast today that sentiment for a general retail sales tax would be much stronger in the new congress which organizes in January.

A sales tax, if it materializes, either could be added onto all existing taxes or substituted for some of the heavy income taxes recently enacted. The war budget to be presented to congress in January may influence this decision.

The influence of the election on economic issues was intensified by general agreement that argument on military matters probably will be restrained, leaving "home front" questions as an outlet for political steam.

Except for the sales tax question, the officials interviewed, all of whom asked to remain anonymous, ranged in their beliefs from one group who said "the new congress won't be any different from the last one" to another who feared "it's going to be tough now to get through some of stabilizations measures which we believe are necessary."

(By Associated Press)

The Democrats today counted 220 representatives and 15 senators as elected by Tuesday's elections for the 78th congress, to convene in January, while the Republicans had 208 house members and 18 senators. Contests for three house seats and one senate place still were undecided.

Minor parties winning house seats were the Progressives, taking two places, a loss of one, and American-Labor and Farm-Labor taking one each.

The Democrats had 41 holdover senators, to give them a majority with 56 votes, to a total of 38 for the Republicans, who had 20 holdovers. There is one Progressive in the senate holdovers.

The undecided Montana senate race was between Democrat James E. Murray, the incumbent, and Wellington D. Rankin, Republican. Murray claimed victory, with 83,792 votes in 1,154 of the 1,185 precincts, while Rankin had 82,151.

One gubernatorial race was in doubt, the ballots in Idaho having been sealed for an official canvass, to be made Nov. 23, when the tally showed Chase A. Clark, the Democratic incumbent, had 71,941 and Republican C. A. Bottolfsen, 71,646.

Five Blackout Rule Violators To Face Charges

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Charges of violating blackout regulations will be filed against at least five persons or firms in the city's first crackdown against such infractions, Paul R. Gingher, Columbus civilian defense commander, asserted today.

Gingher said the violations occurred during last Friday's blackout of metropolitan Columbus which an army officer termed "disappointing."

"We have been extremely lenient up to this time," Gingher commented. But for the sake of the morale of our organization as well as the protection of the citizens of Columbus, the great majority of whom have always cooperated, it is necessary that action be taken."

Nearly 100 air raid wardens met last night and presented evidence of reported violations.

City ordinance provides a maximum penalty of $500 fine and six months in jail upon conviction.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen stared coldly at the manager of his hotel Knowing the effect of suspense in discipline, he did not answer Milner at once

"I had you take the men," he said at last, "because I was unwilling to humiliate you by having them listen to what I have to say. This man, judged by his own story, richly deserves discharge, but I am not going to permit you to dismiss him, because your own attitude has confirmed the opinion he gave of your unsympathetic attitude toward your men

"No man with authority over others can afford not to understand, or aid when necessary, the people under him You seem to have lost the respect and liking of your men, and if you are to continue as manager of this hotel, you must get it back Now leave We have a great deal to do"

Milner Humiliated.

Milner, with reddened face and rigidly controlled temper, excused himself hurriedly and took the shifty-eyed man away with him.

"I shall need the adjoining apartment for the rest of the night," my father said as Milner was leaving. "Also I shall need the services of Adams, and if Dr. Twitchell thinks best, I shall wish to talk to Redfield before morning"

"Very well, sir," Milner rejoined, but Philip Veritzen, as soon as the door closed, turned to my father with an agitated question.

"What is all this? Redfield? Dr Twitchell? What has happened?"

"There are many things I have to tell you, Philip," my father said kindly, "things at which I have hinted, but about which I had to keep you in the dark"

He sent an oblique look at Dicky and me, and my husband spoke quickly:

"Perhaps Madge and I would better go over to the adjoining apartment?"

My father considered a second "No," he said finally. "Mr. Veritzen and I will go over there, where we shall not be disturbed But if there is any change in the condition of either Noel or Mary, call us at once."

"But," Philip Veritzen said in puzzled tones, "I do not understand. Mary's heart condition — which incidentally is an unpleasant surprise to me—"

"Mary's heart is in perfect shape," my father said "That was a bit of camouflage for Milner's benefit So some along with me now, Philip.

"Richard, if Dr. Twitchell thinks it's all right to leave Noel and Mary in your charge, I'd like him to go back to Redfield's room and keep watch on anything Milner may be doing"

Dicky and I looked after the two older men with admiration in our eyes, "gentlemen of the old school," I told myself, and knew my husband agreed with me.

"Aren't they somepin?" Dicky demanded with a grin, when the camouflaged door to the other apartment had closed.

"Simply priceless." I agreed. "Did you hear Father say anything to Dr. Twitchell?"

"Not a word," Dicky said. "He was too intent on mollifying old Phil for keeping him in ignorance of all these ructions. I don't envy Dad his job."

"Nor do I" I said absently. "But we would better not waste any time before giving Dr. Twitchell that message from Father."

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE FINESSOMANIA

One of the worst habits you can get into is finessing at every opportunity. There are players who have it to such a degree that it amounts almost to a disease, which might be called "finessomania." When you get far enough along, you will realize that it pays to see if you can't think of some surer way to take or save a trick or tricks, before you essay the gamble of the common or garden variety of finesse

	♠ K J 9 5 2 ♥ K 5 ♦ K J 5 2 ♣ 9 6
♠ 10 7 4 3 ♥ 2 ♦ A Q 10 ♣ K J 7 5 4	N W E S	♠ A Q ♥ Q 9 6 ♦ 8 6 3 ♣ A Q 10 8 2
	♠ 8 6 ♥ A J 10 8 7 4 3 ♦ 9 7 4 ♣ 3

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	3 ♥	4 ♣	4 ♠

Just how the bidding went at another table which reached 5-Clubs in the same duplicate was not reported, but the fact that the contract got made was shown on the score slip. Not so at this table, however, where finessomania beat it.

South led his heart A and, seeing the dummy's singleton, switched to the spade 8, the A killing the K. Two clubs were laid down, then the diamond 10 finessed to the J. Back came a spade to the Q and the diamond Q was finessed, the K taking the setting trick.

Where the contract was made, East must have done some very simple card-reading after getting the lead of the heart A and a spade switch. With a suit long enough to bid that way in a hand as weak as indicated, South must have had at least seven cards. His A lead betokened lack of the K, so that card must be in North's hand, unguarded after the first lead.

In that case, East could simply lead the second round of hearts, when in the lead, and ruff in the dummy A trick or so later, the K having been eliminated, he could have discarded a diamond on the heart Q. Now he could have afforded to lose a single diamond finesse, making his contract because he could ruff one of his own diamonds then in the dummy.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Nov. 7.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A very lively and enterprising day, with all the faculties and forces keyed up to high purpose and important objectives. The affairs generally should move along at high tempo and under tension, but with danger of being carried to excess and extravagance, although a pause to consider should result in excellent results, as the mentality is shrewd and quick. The temper may be impetuous.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly lively and gay year, with all things moving at high pressure and generally toward important and advanced objectives. The energies are under high stimuli and there may be danger of there being excesses, indulgences and extravagances not only in outlay of funds but in word and deeds. The mind should be particularly sagacious and shrewd but may be carried beyond bounds by temper and over-enthusiasm. With care there should be much success.

A child born on this day should have much energy, many skills and creative abilities, and while not normally rash or ill-tempered it may be carried to extremes.

ARMOR BLAMED

OMAHA, Neb.—(U P)—An Omaha coroner's jury has recommended to the postoffice department that it change the type of armored truck it is using for mail pickups.

Armor on the windshield, the jury found, made it impossible for mail driver Walter Micheels to see Mrs. Cecile Burgett as she turned a corner and she attempted to cross the street in another direction. She was instantly killed.

ARMY HELPS OUT WITH NUPTIALS

CAMP STONEMAN, Cal. —(U P) —Army officers here intervened to neutralize the jinx that twice had prevented the marriage of Corp. Leonard Belew and Miss Alvera Mikles of Cummings, O., hometown sweethearts.

The jinx, which had gotten in its deadly work first in Alabama where Miss Mikles had gone for the wedding, and then at Pittsburgh, followed the couple here when an alert sounded at the moment of the wedding.

Superior officers exempted Belew from responding to the alert until the ceremony was finished.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Mansfield bowlers will be given an opportunity to join in the nation-wide Victory Legion bowling tournaments sponsored by the American Bowling Congress to aid the war effort by contributions to the American Red Cross, the United Service Organizations, and the purchase of war stamps and bonds.

This was decided at a meeting last night at the Colony bowling alleys of representatives of the Mansfield Bowling association, the Mansfield Women's Bowling association, and of the benefiting organizations.

A few minor technicalities remain to be cleared up, but otherwise the Mansfield participation in the Victory Legion tournaments is definitely set up.

The program calls for the following special events:

Nov. 9-15—USO bowling benefit week.

Dec. 7-13—American Red Cross bowling benefit week.

Dec. 28-Jan. 3—Bowlers Victory Legion war bond tournament.

Jan. 18-24—American Red Cross bowling benefit week.

Jan. 25-31—USO bowling benefit week.

Bowlers throughout the nation have shown a desire to aid in the war effort, and Mansfield keglers are ready to join in any patriotic movement undertaken in their favorite sport.

Bowlers will be asked to contribute 25 cents each during the four weeks of the USO and Red Cross events, while tournaments conducted during those weeks will include a 50 cent fee for the benefiting organizations in addition to a 20 per cent contribution to the Red Cross and USO by the alley management from bowling fees:

First tournament will be a head pin event the week-end of Nov. 14-15. Then comes a mixed doubles tournament the week-end of Dec. 12-13, a blind tournament the week-end of Jan. 2-3, another mixed doubles tournament the week-end of Jan. 23-24, and another head pin tournament the week-end of Jan. 30-31.

Efforts will also be made to conduct an elimination tournament during the Christmas holiday season with war stamps and bonds sold as admission tickets to the gallery for the championship playoffs

An exhibition match by one of the country's outstanding bowlers also may be staged as an added feature of the elimination tourney.

The Mansfield Bowling association was pledged full support by the Richland County War Bond committee through its chairman, Paul Eliot.

Comes a letter from Betty Gerrell, secretary of the Tappan women's bowling league, asking that a correction be made in the report of that league's matches this week, in which Florence Schaus should have been credited for leading the league instead of Kathleen Henry.

The secretary says the error was the fault of the team member who added up the scores, and not of the newspaper.

Barons Defeated By Buffalo Team

(By Associated Press)

The American Hockey league's leading scorer, Fred Thurier of the Buffalo Bisons, scored the only goal last night as the Bisons blanked the Cleveland Barons and moved into undisputed possession of first place in the western division.

In the night's only other contest, the Providence Reds advanced to within two points of the eastern division leaders, the Hershey Bears, by downing the Indianapolis Caps, 4-3.

PLUG HOLES

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (INS) — Michigan's Wolverines plugged up the holes in their pass defense today in tapering off for the battle with Harvard tomorrow. Coach Fritz Crisler warned the Wolverines that they may expect the Crimson, steeped in the passing tradition of all Dick Harlow coached teams, to take to the air when they invade Ann Arbor.

SHOOT PLANNED

Mansfield Gun club will hold a turkey and chicken shoot Sunday at 1 p. m. at its range on Park Avenue West Road.

Madison Winds Up Grid Year

Defends Fine Record Against Mt. Gilead.

MADISON high school Rams tonight close one of the most successful seasons in recent years, with a record including only one defeat, and that by a respectable score against Columbus North.

The Rams are favored to win from Mt. Gilead in the finale tonight, but rainy weather and a muddy field cut down the advantage held by Coach Al Fendricks' boys.

Mt. Gilead's heavy team is expected to profit by the heavy footing, but the fighting Rams should be able to shake loose their speedy backs often enough to wind up with a victory.

It will be the last game for five Rams, but only four of them will play. The fifth, Center Spriesterbaugh, will see the game from an ambulance, along with Wayne Lanzen. Spriesterbaugh was injured in the Bellville game, and Lanzen in the Columbus North tilt.

Playing their last games will be Captain Harold Hammer, Gross, Rinehart and Poston.

Probable starting lineups for the two teams will be:

Mt. Gilead		Madison
Lee	LE	Gross
Dumbaugh	LT	Bishop
Hobson	LG	Campbell
Jagger	C	Rinehart
Goff	RG	Harfman
Hammond	RT	Morrison
Flavin	RE	Poston
Bletzacker	QB	Hammer
Parks	LH	Anthony
Tennant	RH	Bader
Giffin	FB	Wynn

Grid Quality Fails To Drop

Offensive Machines Dot Football Map.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK—(AP)—All those dire predictions of second-rate football early this fall because various conferences and independent elevens augmented their slender supply of gridiron talent by use of freshmen aren't borne out in a survey made by the Associated Press.

Taking 20 of the schools in the informal eastern sector, the southeast and the Rocky Mountain's Big Seven conferences where the yearlings this season have equal playing rights with upper classmen, it was discovered that the 1942 elevens are stronger on offense and weaker on defense than those same teams were a year ago.

As a double check, a similar survey was made of the games played this season and last by Big Ten, Pacific Coast and Southwestern Conference clubs, which do not use freshmen.

The 20 teams which now use freshmen participated in 113 games before Nov. 1 last year with an average score of 17 to 8. This season the same clubs had competed in 120 contests as they turned into November, with the average score 18 to 11.

A year ago the Big Ten, Pacific Coast and Southwest members had blocked and tackled thier way to 132 decisions with the average score 17 to 11. This fall in 154 games, the mean has been 15 to 10.

"Every kid likes to run with the ball and it doesn't take much coaching to show him how to do it correctly," said Columbia Coach Lou Little in discussing freshmen footballers, "but it is different when it comes to defense."

SEEK UPSET

BLOOMINGTON, Ind — (INS) — Confident they have one major upset in their bag of tricks, the Indiana Hoosiers left for the Minnesota wars today with the hope of spilling the Gophers. Two injured Hoosiers in the squad of 34, End Pete Phios and Guard Howard Brown, were doubtful starters.

ALL-OHIO FOOTBALL CANDIDATES MEET

CLEVELAND —(INS)—A couple of candidates for all-Ohio backfield honors — John Fekete of Ohio University and Bill Dewalt of Western Reserve—will hook up in a duel of football prowess tomorrow night when their respective teams meet at Shaw stadium.

The teams go into the fray evenly matched and with about the same records for the season. Both have been trounced by the University of Cincinnati, the classiest small college eleven in Ohio this year.

MEND DEFENSES

Victory Bowlers Contribute To USO

Week of November 9 has been set aside as Bowling week the nation over. The Bowlers Victory Legion is sponsoring a drive for a USO fund with all keglers asked to contribute 25 cents. With an estimated 1,000,000 persons bowlings, it is hoped $250,000 can be raised for the service organizations. These young salesmen are Milwaukeeans—Gabby Harrison, Marianne Ryan, Roberta Bosworth, Glenn Miller and Toby Boyd, in back.

Tygers Invade Bulldog Lair

McKinley Begins To Take Mansfield Seriously.

Canton McKinley Bulldogs today were treating Mansfield High's Tygers with new respect as they prepared for their annual grid game at Canton's Fawcett stadium tomorrow afternoon.

The Bulldogs started out the season doped to experience one of their best records and perhaps become the first team to defeat Massillon in years. But the Bulldogs were held to a scoreless tie by Canton Lincoln and last week were defeated by Steubenville.

In addition several of their players were injured in the Steubenville game and McKinley is not expected to be at full strength for tomorrow's game.

On the other hand Mansfield's Tygers, after a disappointing start on the season, have shown marked improvement in their last three games, and are regarded as a coming team.

Among the injured McKinley players are Bob Zimmer and Abe Aslanides, first and second string blocking backs, while Center Herman Lombardi is having scholastic difficulty and may not be available. Coach Bup Rearick expects to start Bill Cook at center, but has indicated that Zimmer will be in the starting lineup

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—That idea of having eastern and western major leagues next season is as dead as a slow-footed Nazi in Egypt, but while it lasted it did show up one of baseball's greatest weaknesses—the guys who run the game. . . . We can't see the point of such statements as Sam Breadon's "if ever we have to come to that, let us lock the gates."

BAKER'S HALF DOZEN.

Duke Coleman of Excelsior, W. Va., reports that when he covered a high school football game between Gary and Graham, Va., recently, he found that the Graham team was composed of six regulars and one substitute, all named Saunders. . . . They're all brothers and good enough to win four out of five games.

* * *

There's a report from Akron, O., about a high school coach who sent in one sub during a hot game and took out two players. . . . He didn't discover the error until two plays had been run and when he finally sent in the eleventh man, his team was penalized for taking too many times out. . . . In this connection, Jim Schlemmer of the Akron Beacon-Journal points out that Coach Rosy Starn of Kent State college was a bit smarter. Finding he had twelve men on the field, Rosy sent in two subs and while they were reporting beckoned three players to the sideline.

SERVICE DEPT.

Nine of the eleven starters on Colgate's 1941 football team are in the armed forces and Hank Zittel, the big tackle, already has reached the Pacific war zone.... Although the navy pre-flight training program normally lasts 12 weeks, Halfback Bill Schatzer and Fullback George Benson of the Iowa Seahawks have been "graduated" to flight training after only ten weeks—and right in the middle of the football season, too.

Ray Robinson Favored Again

NEW YORK —(AP)— Although Ray Robinson, Harlem's tap-dancing, zoot-suited fighter, is a 5 to 12 favorite to win his 38th consecutive professional bout tonight, approximately 10,000 fans are expected for his 10-round scrap with Vic Delhcurti in Madison Square Garden.

It will be Robinson's second start in the middleweight ranks, having easily polished off Jake Lamotta recently.

Delhcurti will weigh about 156 while Robinson will come in at about 144.

BETTINA SCHEDULED FOR AKRON FIGHT

AKRON — (INS)— Corp. Melio Bettina will leave the confines of the United States army long enough to try his stinging southpaw swings against Mike Alfano of Bridgeport, Conn., in a bout Nov. 18 at the armory here, Promoter Tom Stanley announced today.

The Beacon, N. Y., belter, ranked third among the country's leading heavyweights, will have no sott touch in Alfano, who recently copped the New England heavyweight title, according to Stanley.

PITT DETERMINED

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Coach Charley Bowser led a weak but determined squad of Pitt Panthers to Columbus today for a game tomorrow with the once-beaten but powerful Buckeyes of Ohio State. At the final practice session of the week yesterday, Bowser announced that Jack Stetler, senior right halfback, would captain the Blue and Gold against the Buckeyes.

Picks Bucks Over Panthers

Expert Takes Weekly Shot At Grid Winners.

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Taking the weekly aim in the general direction of football winners (and hitting some, perhaps):

Wisconsin-Iowa: Not as easy as some might think. It seems certain that Wisconsin will have lost some of its fine edge after the victory over Ohio State and Iowa boasts a real scoring punch when Tommy Farmer's pitching arm is in shape. Still, a vote for Wisconsin.

Notre Dame-Army: Normally this is close every year. It probably will be again. Doubtfully, Notre Dame.

Texas-Baylor: This stubborn guesser goes along with Texas.

Georgia-Florida: Frankie Sinkwich and his mates will have trouble getting "up" for this one but there is no choice but Georgia.

Kentucky-Georgia Tech: Georgia Tech.

Temple-Boston College: Boston.

U. C. L. A.-Oregon: A determined ballot for U. C. L. A.

Pitt-Ohio State: This seems to come under the head of unfair competition. Ohio State.

Indiana-Minnesota: The Gophers are clicking in accustomed style now. Minnesota.

Navy-Penn: Penn is the undisputed powerhouse of the East's Ivy leaguers. Penn.

California-Southern California: On the flip of a coin, Southern California

Harvard-Michigan: Perhaps this will be no run-away but there's no reason to believe the easterners can cope successfully with the Wolverines. Michigan.

Missouri-Nebraska: This should settle the Big Six race. A solid vote for Missouri.

Cornell-Yale: The coin . . . Yale.

Great Lakes-Purdue: The edge belongs to the Sailors. Great Lakes.

Northwestern-Illinois: Eenie, meenie . . . Illinois.

St. Mary's-Duquesne: Taking Duquesne.

Texas A. & M.-Southern Methodist: Texas A. & M.

Washington-Stanford: Stanford.

Over the chalklines otherwise: Tennessee over Cincinnati; Iowa Naval over Fort Knox; Virginia over Washington & Lee.

MEET AGAIN

Failing to complete organization at a meeting last night, representatives of City "A" league basketball teams will meet again next Thursday night at 7:30 at the Y. M. C. A. building.

EXPECT ANNOUNCEMENT ON ROSE BOWL GAME

NEW YORK — (INS) — Announcement that the annual East-West college football game definitely will be held at San Francisco on New Year's day was expected to be followed by formal granting of permission for the Rose Bowl game to be staged at Pasadena on the same date.

William Coffman, managing director of the East-West tussle, conferred with Andy Kerr, of Colgate, here last night relative to plans for Kerr to head the coaching staff for the eastern eleven again, and said all plans virtually had been completed with approval by military authorities for the game to go on.

Doolittle On Starting Team

Buckeye Frosh Tangle With Pitt Yearlings.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State University's football fans get a look today at the Buck "stars of tomorrow" as the school's freshmen football team tangles with a squad of first-year gridders from the University of Pittsburgh.

The game, a preliminary to tomorrow's meeting between the Pittsburgh and Ohio State varsities, marks the first time in Ohio State's modern football history that its frosh gridders have competed against "outside" competition.

Ernie Godfrey, coach of the freshmen team, who has been around Ohio State football for more than a decade, says this year's frosh crop is one of the best.

One of the Buck frosh who promises to become a bright "star of Tomorrow" is Lou "Chief" Groza, giant tackle from Martins Ferry, whom Coach Paul Brown describes as the greatest placekicker he has ever seen.

Groza, an all-Ohio football and basketball player in high school, will put on a placekicking exhibition before assuming his starting tackle position in the game.

Another standout is Tommy Phillips, a passing and running expert from Berea, whose scholastic performances won him the sobriquet of "touchdown Tommy."

Phillips won't be in the starting lineup, however, because of a bad ankle.

The starting backfield, Godfrey said, will be: Tom Jeffries of Youngstown, who will hold down Phillips' regular left halfback post; Joe Whisler, a riproaring fullback from Willard, the hometown of former Buck captain Jim Langhurst; Russ Wolfe, fleet-footed right half from Upper Sandusky, and Bill Doolittle, a quarterback from Mansfield.

The starting line: Ends—Stan Dixon, Wyoming, O., and Louis Holzapfel of Greenville; tackles—Groza and Charles Albright of Van Wert guards—Ed Burrus of Toledo and Warren Ambling of Parma, Ill., a brother of Martin Ambling of the Buck varsity squad, center—Wayne Caldwell of Springfield.

The game is the first of three for Ohio's yearlings. They meet Indiana's frosh a week from today in Ohio stadium and play Michigan's first-year squad before the Michigan-Ohio game here Nov. 21.

DUEL ANTICIPATED

MINNEAPOLIS —(INS)— An individual duel between Minnesota's Bill Daley and Indiana's Billy Hillenbrand was anticipated today for the Gopher-Hoosier battle tomorrow. Daley will play with the aid of a hip pad but otherwise is expected to be in top form.

Bulldogs Battle Pioneers

Junior High Teams Meet In Championship Tilt.

Mansfield junior high schools, meeting in their annual championship football game at Stadium field tonight at 8 o'clock, may find their gridiron pageantry marred by bad weather, but the student bodies are expected to show all of their usual enthusiasm.

John Simpson Bulldogs, already owning one victory over Johnny Appleseed Pioneers this season, must be favored to take the return game tonight and maintain their undefeated record for the fall campaign.

* * *

Although Coach Bob DeHaven lost nearly all of his starting regulars from last year's championship eleven, he has come up again with a hard hitting line and a fast set of backs whose play has at times bordered on the sensational.

Johnny Appleseed has shown considerable improvement since its first loss to Simpson, and the Pioneers should be keyed up for tonight's chance at revenge.

Bands of the two schools will vie again tonight for the championship trophy offered last year by the Downtown Coaches association on a three-year basis, and won a year ago by Appleseed.

Programs have been printed identifying the players by their numbers, so that fans seeing the teams for the first time will not have difficulty following the play.

* * *

The fans will see plenty of promising material for future Mansfield high school teams in the lineups of the rival junior high squads tonight. And they may be surprised again tonight, even as they were a year ago, by the unusual ability of some of these boys now wearing the Bulldog and Pioneer uniforms.

WILLKIE TRIP BARES SHORTCUT

Focusses Attention on Route To Orient That's Nearly 1,000 Miles Shorter.

SEATTLE —(INS)— Wendell L. Willkie's spectacular round-the-world flight, with return through Alaska, dramatically focuses attention on this short cut route over which the bulk of America's air commerce to the Orient may be flown in the post-war period.

This route is from 700 to more than 1,000 miles closer to the entire Orient, including the Philippine islands, the Dutch East Indies, India, China and Japan, it was pointed out by Willis Camp, United Air Lines district traffic manager in Seattle.

Seattle, Camp said, is some 700 miles closer to all of these points than either San Francisco or Los Angeles. Hence, the northern circle shortcut route to the Orient by way of Seattle shows promise of being the most economical route and the one with the heaviest traffic.

Trade possibilities with the Orient are tremendous. For example there are ten times as many people in the Orient as in South America, said Camp, and the Orient is closer to the Pacific Northwest than is South America.

Huge, four-motored air cargo planes now in production, can each haul more cargo in a day than 40 two-ton trucks. At present these big ships are flying army troops and supplies, which constitute our "world commerce" of today, declared Camp.

But this same fleet of planes, greatly expanded by the end of the war, will be available for quick transportation of business men, tourists and critical commodities in global commerce during the post-war reconstruction period.

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

SO THAT WAS ANNA SCHMIDT!
OF WHOM THE F.B.I. SUSPECTS SUCH TERRIBLE THINGS! I NEVER WOULD HAVE THOUGHT IT OF HER!
11-6
--- SHE SEEMED SO NICE AND FRIENDLY—NOT LIKE A TERRIBLE CREATURE! I WONDER—COULD THE F.B.I. BE MISTAKEN?
YET, WHEN SHE WASN'T SMILING, HER FACE DID HAVE A HARD LOOK!
WHEN SHE FIRST STARTED TALKING TO ME, I WAS A LITTLE NERVOUS!
GUESS THAT WAS BECAUSE I KNEW WHAT SHE IS—OR AT LEAST IS SUSPECTED OF BEING! I THINK I PLAYED MY PART ALL RIGHT. SHE APPARENTLY WAS NOT SUSPICIOUS OF ME. BUT SHE CERTAINLY HAD BEEN CHECKING UP ON ME WITH THE LANDLADY!

BY THE WAY, WHAT DID YOU WANT TO TALK TO ME ABOUT?
IT WILL KEEP—BUT I'M NOT SURE I WILL
THAT WORKOUT WILL MAKE A NEW MAN OF YOU
OR A DEAD ONE!

MUST LEARN IT

YOUNGSTOWN — (INS) — The "Star Spangled Banner" and its verses is now a "must" in all schools here according to Miss Mary O. James, supervisor of vocal music in the schools.

"One thing sure is that the next generation in Youngstown will be able to sing the national anthem if the occasion arises—and they'll know every word of it," said Miss James.

IMPROVEMENT DISPLAYED BY SELECT STOCKS

Fractional Gains Posted By Number of Leaders In Early Trading.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Improved tendencies were shown by selected stocks in today's early market transactions but many leaders remained in the backward column.

At a moderately active opening fractional gains were posted for DuPont, American Telephone, U. S. Steel and N. Y. Central. On the downside were Pennsylvania, Nash-Kelvinator, United Aircraft, U. S. Rubber, Allied Chemical and Caterpillar Tractor.

Merchandising securities had the benefit of a Dun and Bradstreet survey indicating this week's retail spending throughout the nation maintained rising momentum despite adverse weather conditions in various sections.

Continued demand for goods also was confirmed by the federal reserve board's compilation disclosing department store sales for the country as a whole during the week ended Oct. 31, exceeded the like week a year ago by 14 per cent.

Labor Group Hits Appointment of Hamilton; Blecker Named Rental Attorney.

questing that no further action be taken by the regional director until the Mansfield CIO and A. F. of L. council conferred on the appointment of Hamilton.

Heston said he had received a reply from Schell, but declined to reveal the nature of it.

Heston added that it was customary for OPA officials to consult labor groups in making appointments of rent directors.

An assistant in Schell's office in Cleveland said today, however, that "only in isolated cases" have labor groups protested or asked that they be permitted to make recommendations for appointments. Schell was out of the office and could not be reached for comment.

The Citizens' committee was organized in Mansfield last summer and has eight or 10 members, Heston said. It is headed by C. D. Fike, chairman.

Attorney Blecker, as chief rent attorney for the three-county area, will check the legality of examiners' decisions on rent complaints. An investigator will receive the complaints first and turn them over to the examiner with the evidence he finds. The OPA office in Cleveland refused to make public the amount Blecker will receive as rent attorney.

Hamilton announced today that rent rationing registration will start Monday in Mansfield and throughout the three-county area. Registration sites will be announced Sunday.

Morton F. Hayman of the Cleveland OPA office is in Mansfield today giving instructions to Hamilton's staff members already named.

Telephone numbers at rent headquarters are 4565-6 and 2724-6.

under steady pressure of an Allied drive.

Gen Douglas MacArthur's Australian command declared today that the ill-fated enemy assault which late in September had advanced to within 32 miles of the Allied Port Moresby naval base, had been pushed back well beyond the half-way point at Kokoda, about 60 miles inland.

Allied bombers also struck for the second successive day at enemy-occupied towns of Maobisse and Ailey in Portuguese Timor, northwest of Australia, and at the Japanese north shore New Guinea base at Salamaua. The foe's Buin-Faisi area in the northern Solomons also was bombed again last night.

The navy disclosed that United States warships shelled Japanese positions on the north coast of Guadalcanal near Kokumbona the night of Nov. 3-4.

Army aircraft also continued to assault Japanese troops and supply dumps in the same area without opposition.

Meanwhile, an appeal for a coordinated American naval and army command in the South Pacific was voiced here by Walter Nash, minister to the United States and the Pacific war council from New Zealand.

Nash asserted in a radio broadcast last night that "it is imperative that the United States commanders—General MacArthur and Admiral Halsey—work in close cooperation."

BRITISH FIGHT INSIDE AXIS DESERT LINES

Wedge Through Nazi Forces To Encircle Foe; 13,000 Prisoners Taken.

The Axis high command still led the British in progress reports of the Allied offensive. The broadcast communiques from Rome and Berlin placed the area of violent combat between Fuka and Matruh—62 and 104 miles west of the original El Alamein line.

The new British figures on tanks destroyed and prisoners taken incorporated the latest figures, 4,000 more men and at least 79 more tanks.

Announcement of the new Allied successes indicated that the victorious Eighth army had ground out an advance of 50 miles since breaking through the enemy's positions near El Alamein and dispatches from the front suggested that the battle of North Africa rapidly was degenerating into a race across the desert, with Rommel's forces trying desperately to escape utter destruction.

Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery, commander of the Eighth army, confidently proclaimed a complete and absolute victory for the Allies in Egypt and declared that his troops would wipe out all the Axis forces remaining in North Africa.

Official British figures placed Axis prisoners at 13,000, and the number was growing hourly.

Among the captives taken yesterday, a communique said, was the commander of the Italians' vaunted Trento division and his chief of staff. (The authoritative British Press association in London identified the Italian as General Francisco Scotti.)

The bulletin said that a large number of Italians, apparently abandoned by fleeing German mechanized formations in the southern sector of the battlefield, were being rounded up

Fifty-nine Italian and 20 German tanks were reported destroyed yesterday, bringing the total knocked out by the British offensive to 339.

British submarines cooperating with the Allied air forces in attacking Rommel's overseas supply lines, were credited officially with sinking six more Axis vessels and damaging two others in the Mediterranean.

The Axis air forces appeared to have been virtually driven from the skies over Egypt.

Five enemy fighters which tried to intercept Allied planes were shot down yesterday along with a small communications aircraft. Allied losses were put at four planes.

As the British Eighth army pursued its advance across the desert, the potential battle area, limited heretofore to the narrow 40-mile front between the Mediterranean seacoast and the Qattara depression, widened steadily

(A Reuters dispatch from Cairo said that the battlefront already had doubled in length—a statement which would indicate that fighting had progressed beyond Fuka.)

Although some Axis forces were reported yesterday to be holding out in isolated spots on the southern end of the Alamein line, Montgomery asserted that they would quickly be "put in the bag."

Allied bombers, operating in endless relays, attacked the fleeing Axis forces from dawn to dusk yesterday, paying special attention to the coastal road which is the enemy's main avenue of retreat.

Allied airmen observed many huge fires burning along the line of the Axis retreat and it appeared that the enemy was burning supply dumps.

In addition to attacking targets in the immediate battle zone a mixed force of United Nations bombers swept across the Mediterranean Wednesday night to batter the Axis airdrome at Maleme, Crete.

Enemy motor torpedo boats also were attacked off the North African coast between Fuka and El Daba by Allied naval planes.

(A Reuters dispatch from Cairo said that not a single Axis tanker had reached North Africa in the last six weeks.)

Captured General Admits Nazi Danger

LONDON—(INS)—Gen. Ritter von Thoma, commander of the German Afrika Korps who now is a prisoner of the British, admits that "the situation is critical," the London Evening Standard reported today.

Von Thoma made his admission in a conversation with Lieut.-Gen. Bernard Law Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth army, who talked to him at the tank depot where he is interned the Standard said.

Rome Hits New Low In War Pessimism

LONDON—(INS)—Rome has been dropped to a new low level of pessimism over events transpiring in Egypt, the Evening Standard reported today in a dispatch from Berne.

Some Italian officials, it was said, are making attempts to keep up appearances pending the outcome of what they termed "an important Axis high command decision."

Premier Benito Mussolini was reported to have received Gen. Ugo Cavalero, chief of the Italian general staff, for a lengthy discussion of the Axis retreat to the west. Later German military officials were said to have been called in by Il Duce for consultation.

An endeavor was made to hide the seriousness of their conferences from the Italian people but as motorcycle messengers came and went they had to plow through throngs of spectators gathered outside the meeting place

Gen. Montgomery Goes to Battlefront

HEADQUARTERS BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY—(INS)—Declaring that the Allies had won a complete and absolute victory in routing the Axis from the El Alamein front in Egypt Lieut. Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery commander of Britain's eighth army, himself went out to the "battlefront" today to get on with the job of "driving the Axis clean out of North Africa."

The daring general, twice wounded in the last war, went out behind his infantrymen advancing to the rear of a formidable array of three armored divisions which sped swiftly toward the beaten and retreating Axis columns in the wake of terrifying Allied aerial assaults.

"This has been a fine battle—a complete and absolute victory but the party is not over," he declared.

"Our armor—three armored divisions—are now engaging the enemy armor in enemy positions.

"I am going to the front now to get on the job of driving the Axis clean out of North Africa."

Russians Say Duce Met Hitler Late in October.

LONDON—(AP)—A round-about report reached London today through Russian sources that Premier Mussolini left Rome by air late in October for a meeting with Adolf Hitler at which Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring of the German air force also participated.

A Reuters report from Moscow said it was contained in a Geneva dispatch to Tass.

school conducted here by Purdue-war department faculty members."

Kalbfleisch will record with the council tonight a letter of appreciation from the Chemical Warfare Service officers who led the school in which they say: "The Mansfield school was one of the most successful we have conducted and attendance was comparable with that enjoyed in much larger cities."

To further the enlistment of women and young people in the defense movement Kalbfleisch will ask for the creation of a speakers' bureau to spread the defense idea into all sectors and that more active work be delegated to chiefs of the various services.

During the last several weeks Marriott, Kalbfleisch and other leaders have conducted meetings throughout the city and well into Richland county in their efforts to enlist an adequate defense organization.

Local defense chiefs view today's announcements urging the enrollment of women as being primarily a furtherance of the Mansfield plan adopted two months or more ago. Ralph H. Stone, state director, suggests in addition to the protective units that groups to direct nutrition efforts, housing, health and transportation programs be formed.

Stone's plan calls for the "mobilization of every man, woman and child behind the various civilian war services."

CALLS FOR NEW MANPOWER UNIT

Kaiser Would Have Nine-Man Board Handle Draft and Voluntary Labor Plan.

day recommended before a congressional committee that a new, overall nine-man federal agency be created to handle through voluntary methods all the nation's manpower problems.

Kaiser called for abolition of the existing selective service system, as well as elimination of the war manpower commission from the labor picture, and proposed that an end to voluntary enlistments in the armed forces be ordered.

Appearing before a senate education and labor subcommittee studying manpower problems, Kaiser emphasized that he was strongly opposed to any "freezing" of American labor. He said that a voluntary method was the answer to solving the question of supplying labor for war industries and essential civilian industries

Kaiser explained that in urging abolition of the present selective service system, he favored retention of its aims and policies of drafting for the armed forces, and proposed that its duties be continued by the recommended new agency.

He also voiced the opinion that the proposed overall agency, once created, should issue immediate orders halting voluntary enlistments in the armed forces. Thus, he said the flow of labor in war industries and into the armed forces could be controlled and no interruptions would result from wholesale enlistments.

As Marines Received Gift Of Plaque

In the accompanying photograph Postmaster H. E. Homberger, right, is presenting to J. M. Buchanan a plaque extolling the heroic exploits of the marine corps at Wake Island, while John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal and an ex-marine, witness the ceremony. The plaque will be hung in the Memorial building quarters of Richland detachment, Marine Corps league, after a week's display in the Ohio theater lobby during the corps' aniversary showing of the gripping war film, "Wake Island." The plaque was a gift of Max Joice of Paramount pictures and Grattan Johnston, Warner Bros. theater manager here.

COUNTY DETACHMENT OF U. S. MARINES PRESENTED PLAQUE

Firing the opening gun in Mansfield's observance of the Marine Corps' 167th anniversary which will be featured by a week's showing of the film "Wake Island" at the Ohio theater, the Richland detachment, Marine Corps league was presented with a bronze plaque commemorating the glorious story of the Marines at the south Pacific island.

Max Joice of Paramount and Grattan Johnson, local manager of Warner Brothers theaters, delivered the plaque to Postmaster H. E. Homberger who presented it to J. M. Buchanan, past national inspector general of the league.

Beginning with the showing of the film tomorrow there will be a lobby display of photographs of this area's 150 Marines now on active duty, with five uniformed Marines acting as recruiting officers during the week's filming of the historic picture.

Parents of Marines will meet in the league headquarters in the Memorial building Tuesday evening along with ex-Marines, and march to the Ohio theater where Marine mothers will be admitted free. Following the show the parents will return to the clubrooms for a get-acquainted session.

General George Washington sponsored the formation of the Marine Corps which came into being Nov. 10, 1775. Up through American history the corps has established an illustrious record, climaxed by victory over the Japanese at Wake Island and their current mastery over the yellow hordes in the Solomons. Commemorating their exploits at Wake island, the plaque bears an inscription from President Roosevelt's message to congress last January, as follows:

"There were only some four hundred United States Marines who in the heroic and historic defense of Wake Island inflicted such great losses on the enemy. Some of these men were killed in action and others are now prisoners of war. When the survivors of that great fight are liberated and restored to their homes, they will learn that a hundred and thirty million of their fellow citizens have been inspired to render their own full share of service and sacrifice."

COALITION FOR VICTORY TALKED

Dems, GOP Would Unite To Speed War But New Deal 'Must End Experiments.'

tor O'Daniel (D., Tex.) introduced a bill to suspend the 40-hour week for the duration "to help solve our manpower problem."

However, many house members showed a disposition to avoid all controversy that might impede the war effort.

While the Democrats retained control of the house in Tuesday's Republican sweep, the margin was so narrow that a federation of Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats can muster a majority whenever party lines are not involved.

Vandenberg described the elections as a demonstration of popular dissatisfaction with the conduct of the war.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) attributed Democratic reverses to what he termed the New Deal's "passion for regulating people and their lack of talent for doing so."

Vice President Wallace visited President Roosevelt yesterday, and on leaving the White House told newspapermen the president was in "excellent spirits."

"The breath-taking thing about it," he said, "is the success of the president in holding both houses through six elections."

URGE SHIFT TO WAR INDUSTRY

Draft Officials Say 3-A Men Can Get Reclassifications.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Three-A men can become 3-B's by getting a job in a war plant, even if it's only as elevator pilot.

Selective service officials say they hope to induce large numbers of men now holding non-essential jobs to shift to war work by offering them longer draft deferment.

A barber classified as 3-A because he has dependents, for example, should be reclassified as 3-B if he goes to work in an airplane factory, regardless of the nature of the job.

DRIVE EXTENDED

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Originally scheduled to close today, the Columbus War Chest drive has been extended to Monday. So far, a total of $1,294,297 or 92.4 per cent of the goal of $1,400,000 has been pledged, campaign leaders announced.

obviously with a view to drawing out of London on any plans for offensive action.

These reports cited both Casablanca in French Morocco and Dakar, the great West African base, both in control of Vichy France, as danger spots for a possible Anglo-American drive.

Radio Rome went so far as to speculate on the possible invasion of Italy when and if the Axis is completely cleared out of Africa.

Axis fears that an Allied blow may strike at any moment far behind Marshal Erwin Rommel's battle lines in the desert were not lessened by the increasing scope of the British victory.

Advices from Egypt today left no doubt that Rommel was striving desperately to save the remnants of some 130,000 to 140,000 men which he had concentrated on the Alamein front.

The remaining Axis armored units were scurrying westward on the coastal road while the Italian infantry divisions appeared to have been left more or less to their fate.

The Italian divisions included the remnants of the Ariete and Littorio armored divisions, the Trento and Trieste mororized divisions and the Bologna, Brescia, Pavia, and Folgore infantry units.

The Italians were believed to be cut off from food, munitions and oil supplies and forced to fall back on foot over the open desert and save themselves as best they could.

There was considerable doubt whether Rommel would be able to protect his own withdrawal under the terrific pounding of the Eighth army's mobile columns and air force.

BONDS HIKED

Richland Trio to Post $2,000 For Release From Jail.

Bond of the three Richland county men charged with arson as a result of a series of Halloween depredations in Richland and Crawford counties was increased yesterday from $1,000 to $2,000 each by Judge C. U. Ahl, at Bucyrus.

One of the trio, Melvin Bigland, 18, Sharon township, furnished bond and was released, while the other men, Floyd Albright, 28, and Daniel Reybold, 19, both of Shelby, were returned to the Crawford county jail.

The men are charged with having set fire to an abandoned building near Tiro last Thursday night during a six-hour jaunt through the two counties where they left a trail of vandalism. They confessed to Deputy Fire Marshal Gayle H. Owens that they had fired a straw stack in Richland county before crossing into Crawford county where the building was burned. They told Owens they had shot at windows, village street lights, damaged tombstones in a cemetery near Tiro and damaged other property after having visited several taverns earlier in the evening.

Their arrest resulted after a Tiro resident gave authorities the license number of their car.

Questions And Answers Clear Confusion On Gas Rationing

15 miles to the gallon. 16 gallons would allow you to drive 240 miles a month. 150 miles is allowed for occupational or essential driving and 90 miles for the family or unessential driving.

Q. Is every driver allowed an A book or is just one book per family permitted?

A. This is not a registration of drivers but of cars—private passenger vehicles and motorcycles. Each car, in a sense, is issued a book and this book cannot be used for any other vehicle.

Q. What are the special qualifications?

A. The application must be signed by the registered owner of the motor vehicle and presented by him except in the event of his absence or physical disability then a duly authorized agent acceptable to the co-ordinators may present the application for him.

Each applicant shall state the serial number of all tires, including the spare tire, mounted on the vehicle for which application is made and the number of passenger type tires including scrap tires which are owned by the registered owner or by any person living in the household of such owner. No ration book shall be issued to any applicant who lists more than five passenger type tires regardless of size for each registered passenger car. It is also necessary that THE CARS REGISTRATION FOR LICENSE BE PRESENTED.

Q. How am I to dispose of my extra tires?

A. Scrap tires may be given or sold to a scrap dealer, all others may be disposed of by calling the Railroad Express who will call for them free of charge and you will later receive your money in the form of a check, stamps, or bonds.

Q. When I went to write down the serial numbers of my tires, I found more than one set of numbers, how can I tell which is the right set?

A. The serial numbers are always indented on the wall of the tires. The other numbers or letters are raised.

Q. I couldn't find any indented numbers. They must have been worn off or rubbed out.

A. In that case you need only the brand name of the tires.

Q. Now that I have listed all my tire serial numbers, what do I do with them?

A. On the back of the application blank for the basic mileage ration you will find space to write these numbers down.

Q. Do I have to do this?

A. It's necessary if you hope to get a mileage ration book.

Q. What happens after I list the five tires I am allowed for my car and the registrar issues my basic book?

A. The registrar will also give you that part of the application form which contains the tire inspection record.

Q. I've got to hang onto that?

A. Yes, indeed, it is a valuable piece of paper. It will be a record of your periodic tire inspections and will be proof later that you've taken good care of your tires. Also you will not be able to get your share of gas if you fail to comply with these instructions.

Q. How soon will the first inspection have to take place?

A. Sometime between Dec. 1, 1942, and Jan. 31, 1943.

Q. Where can I get tire inspection?

A. At any service station, tire shop, or garage authorized by OPA to perform the inspection The list of these places will be made available at a later date.

Q. How often will these inspections be required?

A. Holders of B and C ration books must have inspection every 60 days, while motorists with an A or basic D books must have inspection only once in every four months.

Q. Would you tell me, in general, who is in the B and C class of eligibles?

A. Yes, in general, those who must do occupational driving in excess of 150 miles per month are entitled to B books. Those who are in war work, governmental service, doctors, and ministers who drive in excess of 470 miles of occupational driving are eligible for C books. However, there are other specific requirements.

Q. When do I register?

A. You will present your completed application with your registration for license to the nearest elementary school on Nov. 12 if your name begins with any letter from A through G; Nov. 13—H through S; and Nov. 14—T through Z.

southeast of Nalchik, from where the Germans are trying to drive to the Grozny oil fields and Ordzhonikidze, terminus of two military roads to the southern Caucasus.

However, the Soviet high command had not reported a German advance southeast of Nalchik in the last three days, and a curtain of shell, machine gun and mortar fire was reported sapping the enemy's strength.

A regiment (3,000 men) attacked on one sector, the noon communique asserted, but retreated after losing 300 killed and seven tanks.

The Russians steadily advanced northeast of Tuapse naval base on the Black sea, and the noon communique reported that they had killed 300 more Germans and taken prisoners, in addition to seizure guns, in that area.

Soviet snipers on the cold Leningrad front have killed 820 Germans and destroyed 28 strong points in three days, the noon communique said.

DAILY, including Sundays and Holidays

Says Major General C. P. Gross, Chief of Transportation of the United States Army.

"Transportation is the life blood of this great Army.

"Night and day the railways have been on the job, consistently meeting increasingly difficult requirements, for freight and passenger equipment and service. They have done a superb job."

Yes, night and day, including Sundays and holidays, the railroads of America have been speeding ground forces, air forces, between induction stations, training centers, mobilization points and ports of embarkation—wherever the Army commands!

In the first ten months alone, they have moved approximately 8,000,000 troops, not counting soldiers on leave.

That's over three times as many as they carried in the same period of the last war!

Moreover, these troops are being moved, as they should, in a comfort never before known by an American Army at war—usually in Pullmans for long trips and in coaches for short trips. And with only slight and occasional inconvenience and delay to civilian travel.

For all this, the credit goes jointly to the railroads, the War Department and the Office of Defense Transportation—it's a job of perfect coordination. When the need for quick mass movement of troops came, a plan, which experienced railroad men had been developing for twenty years, went instantly into operation. No confusion. No delay. That's why Uncle Sam's war machine rolls!

MILK FUND AND STUDENT AID

One of the most popular of the Community Fund agencies is the Milk Fund and Student Aid which supplies milk to undernourished school children and furnishes shoes and clothing to pupils whose families are financially unprepared to do so.

The agency this year is budgeted to receive $2,120 in the Community War Chest and the greater part of the fund will be used to supply milk to public and parochial pupils and also the children in Friendly House kindergarten.

Last year 60,000 bottles of free milk were dispensed in the schools through this fund. Due to the system under which it is served only the teacher knows which pupils receive milk free and which ones pay for the milk. All children who need milk receive it and parents able to pay for it do so.

Hundreds of new garments for boys and girls in low income families were purchased through the Student Aid allocation. Last year $600 was expended for this purpose and $1,800 for milk. This year's allocation is lower than last since more families are able to pay for milk.

There is no administration cost in connection with the agency as it is handled directly through the Community Fund office.

VISITING NURSES

Bedside care in homes unable to hire full-time nurses is provided by the Visiting Nurses association, an agency of the Mansfield Community Fund since the latter was organized 22 years ago.

Slated to receive an allocation of $4,500 through the Community War Chest this charitable organization was first financed by the solicitations of Mansfield women who made their request from door to door.

Staffed by three nurses the association cared for 624 cases last year representing a total of 4,409 visits. Maternity service was dropped last summer because of a scarcity of calls that made the retention of a nurse especially for this service impractical.

The association came to the rescue of Mansfield General hospital early in the year by making home deliveries when the hospital was closed for several weeks due to an epidemic of scarlet fever.

In addition to its bedside care the association seeks to place the aged sick or mentally ill in homes where they will receive proper care. The organization is governed by an executive board which now handles the office calls.

Building health.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Nazi spy stories invade the realm of children's books as shown in a new title, "Shadow In the Pines," now in the Mansfield Public library's children's department. Another new story deals with a family in Ireland.

SHADOW IN THE PINES, by Stephen Meader—Ted had planned several expeditions in the woods to be taken during his spring vacation from school, but he changed his plans very soon after he had met Bill Gates the first time. It isn't fair to spoil the suspense by telling more of the story. It is sufficient to know that it is a mystery concerning Fort Dix, N. J., and although it is about men and boys many girls will enjoy it too.

RATHINA, by Mairin Cregan—There were four children in the Donovan family, and they lived on a country estate in Ireland. Eileen's particular interest was a horse that belonged to a neighbor. Because of her secret training he became a famous horse. That is only part of the story however. There are many other adventures of the whole family. If you know someone stationed in Ireland, this book may describe some of his neighbors.

LOANS FOR EMPLOYED WOMEN

We're addressing any employed woman in this community who has a problem which cash can solve. Borrowing money is never wise if it means making difficulties worse . . . but there are certain circumstances in which a well-planned loan is the best way to get out of debt many times. Obligations which seem discouraging when added up in a lump can be paid off comfortably when broken down into monthly payments. And when ready cash isn't available for needed medical or dental work, clothing, for training which will increase one's earning power—then a loan is also common-sense. Here at Personal Finance Company we specialize in serving women. If you need cash—$10 to $250 or more—we'll see that you get it without embarrassment or delay, without involving your friends or employer and without the need for putting up special security. We make loans on just your own signature — because we have found that business women, in this community, honor their obligations.

There is no difficulty in handling monthly payments on a loan here. For example:
$7.53 a Month Repays a $75 Loan in 12 Months

If you need cash, we'll be glad to serve you. Special quick service during lunch hour. Come in or phone then if that's best for you. It will be a pleasure to serve you.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1942.

We are united in seeking the kind of victory that will guarantee that our grandchildren can grow and, under God, may live their lives, free from the constant threat of invasion, destruction, slavery and violent death.
—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Ohio's Message To Washington

OHIO, long regarded as a "normally Republican" state, but more fairly designated as "intelligently independent," has now stepped back, definitely and vigorously, into the Republican column—with reasonable interpretation that a large majority of Ohio voters would like to have President Roosevelt and his associates in Washington understand that the national administration is not being conducted to their liking.

This has nothing to do, it should be understood here and in Washington, with Ohioans' complete and earnest support of the national war effort, but it does mean that most Ohio people believe that party politics, personal likes and dislikes, and efforts to inject New Deal theories and personnel into war realities, have been detrimental to effective prosecution of the war thus far, and also to civilian welfare.

While it may be anticipated that a Democratic majority in the senate and an almost evenly balanced lower house will be quickly responsive to every actual war requirement, and that there will be a better understanding of needs than was evidenced by the present congress before Pearl Harbor, it may at least be hoped that brakes can be quickly set on the extravagant non-military spending that has been going on, and that there will be a restoration of confidence that money being poured into the federal treasury by taxpayers and bond buyers is not being squandered in pursuance of New Deal vagaries.

In reality, as the war moves toward the crucial year of 1943, distinction between Republicans and Democrats might better be put in the background "for the duration," in favor of the broader title, "Americans" for it will be by "Americans" that the war must be won, freedom preserved and policies of peace mapped—not by either Republicans or Democrats as such.

Heavy responsibility rests upon executive and legislative officials, to realize that while they were elected as Republicans they are obligated to serve as Americans—and that winning the war is of first importance.

Read Your Newspaper Carefully

EVERY DAY questions are asked about some of the wartime regulations applicable to individuals—what to do with tires in excess of five; sugar, coffee and gasoline rationing; ceiling prices; selective service; new income taxes, and dozens of other things about which fullest available information has been printed from time to time in the paper.

Some readers explain that they missed seeing the mention of some matter in which they have since become particularly interested, and suggest that the information should be printed several times, and "in larger type."

With such a volume of news and informational material as it is now necessary for newspapers to print, it is obviously impossible to repeat the same information in the complete form in which it originally appears, although "follow stories" frequently direct attention to original wartime regulations and changes made therein.

There was probably never a time when thorough, careful and regular day-to-day reading of a newspaper was more necessary than now—and the habit of "skimming through" your newspaper, and possibly thus missing something of importance, is strongly advised against. A good idea is to keep clippings on subjects of special interest.

George M. Cohan, Unique Figure

NOT OFTEN does Nature make such far departure from the common mold as to produce a person who attains unquestioned leadership in his chosen field and who typifies the generation in which he lives.

Will Rogers was one such—George M. Cohan was another, and the unique individuality of each placed them above successful competition while they lived and leaves them without successors in the range of their peculiar talents.

Born to the theater, Cohan knew no other life in early childhood and he flashed through the years of young manhood with a self-confidence that bordered on conceit and a frankness that approached impudence—but even then, and through his later accomplishments, he displayed the versatility, keenness of mind, determination and driving energy that brought him one success after another in widely varied forms of entertainment.

By happy circumstance, the life story of George M. Cohan, as told in a recently produced motion picture, brought some of the principal incidents of his career to public notice shortly before his death. It is well that Americans know as much as possible about such a man—for he could have been the product of no other country on earth.

Japanese Revert To Savages

AN HONORABLE nation can be respected even by its enemies, but there seems to be no honor or chivalry in Japanese leadership or soldiers.

There have been several striking examples lately of Japanese treachery. They usually involve a flagrant abuse of the flag of truce. The Japs raise the flag in token of parley or surrender, and then American troops taking them at their word, and advancing according to the civilized custom, are shot down from ambush.

Another flagrant practice is the trick of lying on the ground, and pretending to be dead or wounded, and rising up to stab or shoot American soldiers in the back.

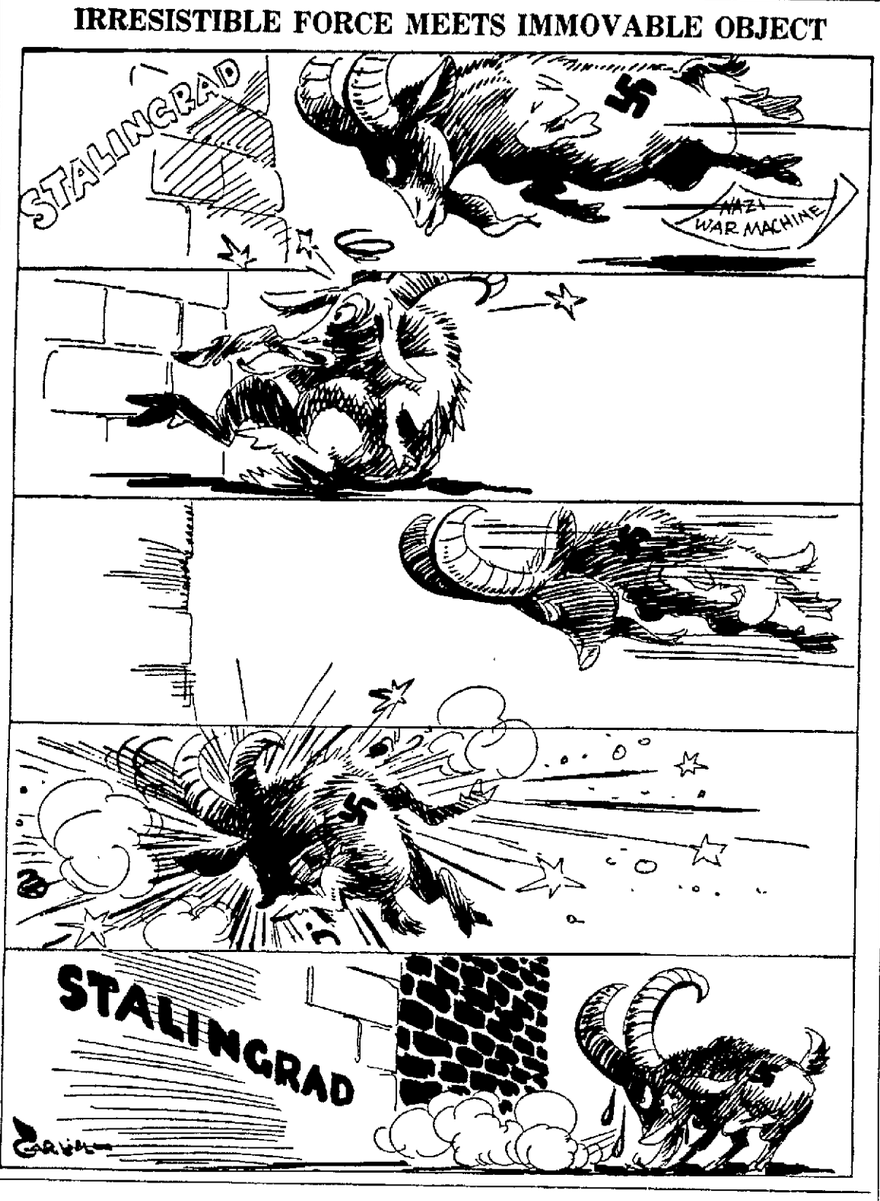
Such treachery naturally defeats itself in the long run. Victimized troops learn to defend themselves and trust no enemy. But it is regrettable, however, to find such a lack of honor, instead of the military chivalry that has developed through the ages in western nations.

Brazil has developed a plastic that can be made from coffee—which may provide an outlet for some that spoils while being hoarded.

"Incompetents in Washington must go," declares the new American Legion commander—but wouldn't that leave a lot of vacant space?

As Robert Quillen sees it: "The manpower shortage is not apparent when a new commission has a few thousand jobs to hand out."

IRRESISTIBLE FORCE MEETS IMMOVABLE OBJECT



Optimism Over Prosperity Ahead

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Whether all our present wartime economic prophets are simply faking their cheerful predictions as to the future or whether practically the whole outfit of 'em are mistaken—or whether there's some sort of a basic difference between this war and any war that ever preceded it—is a problem to which I haven't any tentative answer to offer.

My education, however, until just now, was entirely to the effect that war can't possibly result ultimately in anything but a prolonged spell of bad business conditions for everybody involved in it. There may be a little spurt of activity for a while after some conflict's over, but depression has been represented as the inevitable sequel to the artificial boom accompanying the brief interval of repair work.

The past theory's been that war is destruction. Even the victorious belligerent burns up his real wealth in the form of normally useless military junk, and, in the long run, hasn't anything worth while to show for it. It's like having your house go up in flames, with no insurance, and then reckoning that the job of rebuilding it will make you extra-prosperous.

That's the kind of argument I used to hear from the world's recognized economics relative to strife in olden days.

The 1914-18 period was no exception.

Looking Backward.

Occasionally some short-sighted individual ventured a guess on a few years of inflation upon peace's return, but the genuine economic experts were convinced it wouldn't last long.

Well, we had the boom all right, then the crash and then depression for about a generation.

Today's war, being worse than 1914-18's, bad as that was, wouldn't it seem as if the economists should be still more pessimistic now than they were nearly a third of a century ago?

But no; they're not.

Among the latest I've noted, as expressing himself, was Jay N. Whipple of Chicago, upon his election as president of the American Investment Bankers' association, at its recent New York session.

It isn't the United States alone that President Whipple foresees unprecedented prosperity; there'll be, after the war, he asserted, "the greatest period of expansion and progress the world has ever known." He didn't mention even the Axis powers as being barred out of it.

There's a certain note of genuine optimism in the suggestion that Germans, Italians and Japs won't be excluded from economic international re-co-ordination. If they're put in a separate classification, naturally they'll continue simmering and doubtless cause more trouble later. Maybe, though, Adolf, Benito and Emperor Hirohito will go into the discard and their folk'll become civilized.

That's what democratic economists appear to be gambling on.

The Yankee Foreign Policy association gives more credit to Britain ("new Britain," as the association expresses it) for boosting for a world economic federation, than the association's hopeful of, as insurance of permanent peace on earth.

Russia a Question.

Here's an interesting item—

The Foreign Policy association hooks the United States, Britain and Russia closely in combination.

The association's judgment is that we, Britain and the Soviet folk can get on well together.

As between ourselves and the British, it's true, of course.

That the Soviets will be willing to modify their views to conform to the Anglo-American philosophy is a debatable question.

Listen World!

Close That Door!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DID YOU ever see the Golden Gate park in San Francisco? Loveliest stretch of fairyland that ever rose out of the sand dunes—the flotsam and jetsam of the ocean's tides. Mile upon mile of swaying, turquoise eucalyptus . . . bronze green cypress . . . tapestry riot of purple and gold, scarlet and ivory bloom. Tangled web of gleam and glint and glow before you break out into the cobalt surf. Nowhere in America is there anything quite like this. A man's dream—old and beloved John McLaren—bridging the way between this mortal life and the everlasting horizons of beauty.

And in the center of old John's park there is a memorial so poignant that it must clutch at everyone's heart. Beside a placid pool, against the green gloom of a forest there stands a portal. They call it—"The Portal of the Past." It is a lovely and wistful thing—that portal. Actually it is the arching doorway of a stately home which stood when the great earthquake had blasted all San Francisco to rubble. Now, rescued, it stands as an everlasting memorial to the bohemian beauty and gaiety of yesterday.

The Portal of the Past—it strains your heart to look at it—those white columns mirrored in the dark waters shining against the mysterious dark forest through which there is no trail.

The Portal of the Past"—it pulls at us who have lived with uncontrollable anguish. For we remember the earthquakes that have shaken our own lives . . . the losses we have endured . . . the loveliest nook in all John McLaren's park. And yet I wish it were not so—

For I do not believe in portals that open to the past!

I do not believe in doorways that open to old shock and grief and loss!

It is much easier to remember and grieve and resent than it is to live again—ready to accept new hope, new faith.

It is so much easier to retreat into Yesterday than it is to face Today.

I know—I have so often retreated into Yesterday. Spent my time in heartbreak. Broken dreams. Instead of building new hope—new love and faith.

I remember the earthquake that shook San Francisco. I was in it . . . and in many another earthquake that scattered my own private life. And like every artist, I have been tempted to erect a "portal to the past". It's a fine temptation—a romantic escape—an exquisite dramatization.

BUT WE'VE NO RIGHT TO ESCAPE, YOU AND I WHO WERE BORN TO FACE AND FIGHT UGLY REALITY. WE HAVE NO RIGHT TO DRAMATIZE OUR FEARS—OUR PERSONAL ANGUISH. WE HAVE NO RIGHT TO ESCAPE INTO YESTERDAY—WITH ITS LOST SWEETNESS AND SECURITY. WE WERE MADE TO FACE TODAY . . . TO TURN AWAY FROM THE PORTALS OF THE PAST . . . TO FACE THE DOOR THAT OPENS INTO TOMORROW.

We will have our moments of weakness—the sobbing in the dark when we cannot rise above our mortal despair and bewilderment. And surely the Christ who cried "Why hast Thou forsaken me?" will understand the sobbing of a lonely heart in a darkened room. But with the morning, we must gird ourselves again and face what comes.

WE MUST SHUT THE DOORS TO YESTERDAY!

HOWEVER TORN WE ARE, WE MUST OPEN THE PORTALS TO TOMORROW — WHERE HOPE AND HEALING LIE FOR OURSELVES AND THOSE WHO ARE TO COME.

(Copyright, 1942.)

Timely Editorial

Underrating the Enemy.

An admiral in Boston pleads with Americans to quit belittling the enemy. Don't speak of the "yellow Japs" or the 'dumb Germans," he asks, because this kind of talk encourages our soldiers and sailors to underrate the fighting qualities of the enemy, a mistake for which they may pay with their lives.

Depreciating the courage and brains of the enemy is a sign of stupidity. If we have learned nothing else in nearly 11 months of war, we should have learned that the peoples we are fighting are just as brave, just as smart and just as tough as we are.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Nov. 6, 1922.

High bid for Mansfield's old city building (corner Park avenue and Walnut street) was $87,000, submitted by Sidney A. Foltz for group of Mansfielders who planned to erect modern business block. (Now the Walpark.)

Robert T. VanAuker, 67, died at his home, 132 Weldon avenue.

Surprise party was given for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Epley, Flint street.

Mrs. Nellie Craig was elected worthy matron of Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Interpreting the War News

Temper Optimism With Caution, Advised as Safest View of Egypt

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

LONDON—The Allied triumph in Egypt gives strong hope that we are witnessing the beginning of the not far distant end to Hitler's hold on North Africa.

The Nazi all-highest also is having visions of disaster, for Berlin claims a "remarkable concentration" of British warships and transports at Gibraltar.

The Vichy government is reported to be holding conferences about North Africa and from Rear Admiral Luetzow of the German naval staff we get this:

"Casablanca, on French Morocco's west coast, is a danger spot far overshadowing Dakar.

"Africa swarms with United States agents whose gaze turns to Casablanca."

Is Hitler conjuring up bugbears to torture his sleep? He will know in due course and so shall we. Meanwhile it is a most comfortable feeling to see him worry.

We must temper our natural optimism with caution because there is hard and bitter work to be done before the Axis armies are annihilated.

Once before we had our dreams when Wavell drove defeated enemy columns far to the westward across the desert. But the Axis still was strong then and the Allies weak.

Certainly the forces under Gen. Sir Harold Alexander must be jubilant as they pursue and hammer what a British communique described as the "disordered columns" of the enemy. When you talk about "disordered columns" in retreat you are talking about a "rout," which is one of the greatest disasters that can befall an army.

Axis casualties already have been heavy. Enemy losses in material also have been mountainous and probably the heaviest individual blow dealt Hitler has been in the destruction of tanks. These racing fortresses have been the backbone of Rommel's striking power.

Probably a minimum of half of Rommel's air fleet has been destroyed. The likelihood is that the figure is nearer three-quarters. That is a colossal blow, especially since the Anglo-American aerial fleet already had superiority in the air.

* * *

ELIMINATION of the Axis from North Africa would alter the complexion of the European war.

Restoration of British domination over the Mediterranean area would remove a threat to the strategic Middle East.

It might easily result in the complete collapse of Italy.

It would vastly strengthen Spain's position of neutrality and this would ease a situation which has been a constant worry to the Allies.

No wonder the fuehrer's boasted intuition is making him see pink elephants. As a matter of fact, it looks as though his intuition might be on the right track this time.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The Shadow of Things to Come: Covering Washington from the War Department on lower Constitution to Congress on Capitol Hill, one must inevitably come to the conclusion that future historians may well look back on the fall and early winter of 1942 as the "turning point" in the war.

The reasons: (1) the Solomon Islands battle has spread to the whole 1,200-mile long Coral Sea and may go down as the greatest battle the Pacific ever has seen.

(2) The United Nations' offensive in Egypt is more than a sideshow and could be the beginning of the end of the battle for Africa and control of the Mediterranean.

(3) The battle for Stalingrad (and the striking power the Russians have left when it is over) may determine the fate of the Eastern front.

* * *

NO. 4. There is a growing conviction here that the striking power of the United Nations in Great Britain (both in the air and on the ground) is rapidly being brought to such strength that it is no longer possible for the Nazis' to ignore the fact that the "second front" is on the move.

(5) Air power of the United Nations in China is reaching the point where the Japs must give it serious consideration if they are to hold the gains they have made.

(6) The battle of the Aleutians could determine the future supply lines to Russia and possibly to air bases near the heart of Japan.

On the home front, (7) The taxpayers have got their bill for the first real down payment on this war and now know what they are up against.

(8) The manpower problem, though far from solved, is getting the kind of blitz treatment that foreshadows epoch-making wartime legislation.

NO. 9. Price control, rationing, forced savings and all the other factors in the war on inflation are shaping into accepted facts and the public is co-operating whole-heartedly in regulatory measures that a year ago brought a storm of controversy whenever they were mentioned.

(10) The United States has had its off-year elections. Don't underestimate the importance of this. For a year at least and maybe longer, the legislative branch can settle to its task without casting too many distracting glances at the ballot box. It doesn't, of course, mean an end to politics—but it does mean that the members on both sides of the Capitol can come to grips with the problems ahead without fear of immediate loss of their jobs.

If you are interested in following the course of this war, measure the news of the next few weeks by those ten yardsticks.

If things go well, the period may be marked as that in which the United Nations and the United States quit sparring for time and started on the move. If things don't do well, it will be another story but perhaps no less a turning point. It at least would postpone victory for months, maybe years.

Man About Manhattan

Lady, Name of Spivy

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A large, handsome woman in white, her hair in a singular upswept pompadour, she sits at her raised piano, her back against a red drape, the queen of all she surveys. Her name is Spivy—neither Miss nor Madame—just plain Spivy. By any comparison she is one of the most unusual figures in New York's night life scene.

You might expect to find Spivy in fiction, but hardly in the flesh. Nor quite so much of her. She lives and breathes night clubs, not for the hours, because she likes her sleep, but because she likes people of all sorts. And the night clubs are the places to find them.

She is famous, locally at least, for her songs. They're of the kind called "special material." People go to Spivy's Roof to hear Spivy sing, and when she does it gets so quiet you can hear the clink of ice in a glass ten feet away.

SPIVY is in her middle thirties, and as I have said, is large, although no more than five feet five. She is sensitive about her weight, but does absolutely nothing about it. Her exercise is confined to turning the pages of a book and changing phonograph records. But otherwise, she wouldn't be Spivy.

This unusual career began in Brooklyn. Her parents were from Russia. She has to have a full name, of course, and it's Spivy Le Voe. The first name means nothing whatsoever except that it's hers. She has been a waitress, a blackface comedienne and has worked in revues, but more particularly, was a church and theater organist.

When sound came in, organists went out. Prohibition also came in, and Spivy played the piano in a little speakeasy. After a while she got a job in a bigger speakeasy, singing songs that were risque and then some. Her earnings rose from around $40 to $125 a week. And then prohibition went out, and the speakeasies opened their doors and became night clubs. Spivy found her clientele was changing. The songs were toned down. She added a couple of Noel Coward numbers and blossomed out as a singer at the Madison hotel, wearing evening clothes. She sang in Florida, in Switzerland, in Paris. There was a marriage that didn't take, and was ended by divorce three months ago.

IT WAS two years ago that she set up shop for herself, on the ninth floor of an east side apartment house. The place seats about a hundred, but three hundred can be squeezed in. Walls, furniture and drapes are either red or white. Spivy has an eye for color. Her eyes are brown, her hair a dark brown with an unusual streak of light brown through the center. She wears huge gold earrings.

She lives in an apartment, "across the street from the Coq Rouge, so close I can read their cash register." The war is making her a more interesting figure than ever, for she has adopted the Merchant Marine. Three or four ship-wrecked marines are at the Roof nearly every night, guests of the house. You may not wholly approve of Spivy, but you can't help but like her. Everything she does, she does in a big way.

Medical Treatment of Adolescent Troubles.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE ALWAYS and continuously felt sorry for adolescents. The middle aged may moon about the glorious carefree period of youth, but a good deal of the time it is far from that. It is often a dreadful period of self-consciousness, frustration and adjustments that are difficult, sometimes impossible.

Only lately the medical profession has focused its attention on the adolescent and tried to solve his problems. I am interested in some reports from Asheville, North Carolina, by two psychiatrists who think the general practitioner can and should be the one to handle these difficulties.

Bad Adjustments.

Most adolescents are able in the course of time to make their own adjustments and when they eventually arrive at the age, of let us say, 20, they have found themselves. But there remain a large number who make bad adjustments.

They seldom turn into out and out psychiatric cases, but they are on the borderline and are likely to take one of three behavior paths: the paranoid who believes others pick on him, resents correction and is always dissatisfied; the shy, seclusive person who retires into day-dreaming and fantasy formation; and the defiant, anti-social, offensive youth, the leader of rebellious groups. All of these moods occur mildly in all adolescents and do little harm, but occasionally they become fixed and are more or less serious.

The causes, aside from the inherent cause of being an adolescent, are the over-solicitous mother who prevents the child from growing up and hence makes him unable to hold his own in competition; the stern father who sets standards too high for the child to reach; physical defects, magnified by over-zealous parents and others, which are really trivial (a common one is acne or pimples); and relative mental dullness in a child who is made to compete with children of higher intelligence.

Medical Problems.

Now many of these basically involve medical problems and it is an interesting suggestion that these young people should be encouraged to consult a family doctor or general practitioner. Plainly, the parents are the worst people to guide the adolescent: they have often made him what he is.

The method the doctor uses is explanation, reassurance and desensitization. The adolescent must be permitted to unburden himself completely, encouraged by tactful questioning, and in the absence of any disciplinary or condemnatory atmosphere. The doctor is in a special position to rectify or explain the minor, embarrassing physical disabilities that may be harassing the patient and is in a much better position than the parents to explain and discuss the sex problems and questions that particularly beset this period of life.

Change May Be Needed.

He may have to try to alter the family situation, to change certain phases of the curriculum in school, to direct athletic activities.

Hopeful it is that the family doctor who is doctor of the mind as well as the body should be called in. It is a great advance over the treatment these youngsters have been getting in the past.

GRADE SCHOOLS BUSY WITH AIR RAID PRACTICE

Drills Being Staged to Place Pupils in Shelters Should Emergency Arise.

Ten elementary schools of Mansfield are busy putting finishing touches on a survey telling where to send their pupils in the event of an actual air raid according to information sent out by the Ohio State Council of Defense concerning the emergency dispersal of school children.

In the state bulletin, directed to mayors, county commissioners, chairmen and executive directors of local and county defense councils, principals were told that if their pupils could reach home in 30 minutes, the time it is said to take enemy planes to reach their site after an air raid warning has been sounded, they should be sent there.

Accordingly, teachers were asked to find out exactly how long their pupils took to reach their homes and whether any adult would be present to take care of them.

Since these 10 principals desired to have a training program set up for air raid drills, almost every week now the alarm sounds for a drill at the various schools. Bomb shelters have been designated for the practice and will now be used for the boys and girls having to remain in the building during an actual air raid

Brinkerhoff school had a drill Wednesday, according to C C. Secrist, principal, who said that the questionnaires are all returned from parents Pupils took their coats to assigned shelters yesterday and several older boys went to stations near fire extinguishers in the school, to be ready for any emergency.

At Bowman school each room has a student captain. E. W. Kissell, principal said. Safety zones in case of drills are indicated by arrows and signs in the 25 rooms tell pupils where they are to go. "We have had and will continue having our drills, Kissell said A similar defense plan is in operation at Prospect school where sixth grade pupils are assigned to help first graders, G. W. Taylor said. As for defense equipment, there has been "no information about special equipment being required for grade schools," Taylor said.

Besides practice drills many other defense activities are going on at Newman school, Jesse Beer, principal said. "Yesterday alone pupils bought $16.20 worth of defense savings stamps," he said. During the teachers' meeting this morning, further steps were made concerning our drill program, and other war-time activities, Beer said.

Heading the defense committee are Miss Ruth Pulver and Miss Reba Robinson and boys of the school patrol are on duty during the practices

"We had air raid drills last year and are continuing them again this year," Roy Spetka, principal of Bushnell school, said "Pupils are completely trained and go to our basement shelter during trial raids," he added The school janitor heads a fire patrol made up of chosen pupils and teachers are on duty in the shelters In the event of a necessitated lengthy drill, officials have made provision for entertainment, Spetka said.

Drills are held two or three times a month at Carpenter school where two shelters have been made in the basement, Dean Rex, principal, said.

J. M. Clark, principal at Western avenue school, said that separate shelters for boys and girls have been arranged at that school where every teacher is in charge of her room

On the defense committee at West Fifth street school headed by W. W. Blauser, principal, are Mrs. Kathryne Bancroft, the Misses Beatrice Colvin, Irene Hutzelman, Betty Morrison and Mrs. Margaret Manz. Two shelters are in use, but 95 per cent of the pupils will be sent home during a raid, Blauser said. Patrol boys and girls are acting as guards.

Woodland school has been continuing practice drills since last March, according to C. A. Divelbiss, principal Like the other schools, Woodland has a regular outlined program for teachers and pupils Only special equipment to be bought by Hedges school were flashlights for the teachers, Glenn L. Robinson said. A group of boys to assist janitors in fire fighting, headed by Ira Zimmerman, custodian, have been named, he said, and drills are held about every Friday.

CHAPTER IX

"Oh, Lord," Bruce groaned as the boat neared land, "Do you see what I see?"

"I forgot to tell you," the director said apologetically, "But I dined with her last night. She begged so hard to come here today. And you know what she's like when she wants anything."

"Yeah, I know," said Bruce. His mouth closed in a thin line. The Countess Saskia was famous in Hollywood for her parties and her relentless seeking out males who pleased her fancy. She was American-born. But after her doting, but misguided, father died, leaving her two million dollars she had gone to Austria to study the customs and sports of that country. She had returned to the United States with a handsome but weak member of Austria's tired aristocracy, Count Saskia.

That was fifteen-odd years ago. The Countess was now in her middle forties and still good-looking—in a harsh, aggressive manner. The Count had disappeared from her life several years ago.

A stunt-man was something new for the Countess. She usually collected young leading men in pictures. To date, Bruce had evaded the pressing invitations to her palatial estate in Bel-Air.

Her slightly-protruding eyes widened with admiration as she tripped forward on ridiculously high heels to greet him.

"You were wonderful," she said.

"Yes," replied Bruce.

"Has he told you?" Countess Saskia indicated the director, who suddenly found something to attend to, "I'm staying up here for a few days."

"If you'll pardon me, I have to change my clothes," said Bruce abruptly.

They went back to the hotel, the Countess insisting on a place in the car with Bruce.

To get rid of her, Bruce said "I have an important call to put through." He telephoned Livia.

"She left here this afternoon," Mis Sayles told him.

'What? . . . Where did she go?"

"To the Beverly Hotel"

To the Countess, who was hovering outside the telephone booth, Bruce said, "I must get back to Hollywood tonight."

"I have my car outside—we can make it in two hours," she told him happily. Bruce considered a moment. Then accepted her offer

What had happened? How could Livia on a salary of an extra live at the luxurious Beverly Hotel?

* * *

The drive seemed interminable. But they finally arrived at the hotel. When Bruce asked for Miss Clarkson at the desk, the clerk shook his head.

"There is no one of that name here."

"There is no one here by that name," repeated the desk clerk.

"Where is the manager?" Countess Saskia demanded.

Presently the manager, all bows and smiles, arrived and looked through the book of reservations.

"There must be some mistake," he told the countess. "The lady is not registered here."

"A drink will do us both good. Let's go to the bar," the countess said to Bruce. He followed her slowly. "We'll have that table in the corner," she said briskly to the waiter and turned to Bruce for approval.

He was staring in mingled bewilderment and relief at a girl with auburn hair in a clinging white evening gown, and a white ermine coat over her shoulders With her was a sleek, dark-haired young man in full evening dress. Bruce walked slowly toward Livia followed closely by the countess

"They told me you weren't registered here," Bruce said Livia started, but recovering quickly, smiled at Bruce. His eyes wandered from her ermine coat, then back to her eager eyes, then to her escort, who seemed uncomfortable and was studying the table.

"Won't you introduce me to your friend?" said the countess to Bruce. The man with Livia looked up at that and murmured: "Hello, Maggie."

The countess ignored him and sat next to Livia.

"What will you all have to drink?" she said brightly.

"I have to talk to Livia alone. Will you both excuse us?" Bruce said.

"You must settle whatever you have to in five minutes," said the countess with forced gaiety. "Antonio will entertain me." And she glared at the uncomfortable escort.

Livia followed Bruce into the lounge. They sat down silently in two arm-chairs with a low cocktail table between them. Bruce rolled a cigaret with slow deliberation, and waited for her to speak.

"I've changed my name," Livia said. "I'm now Veronica Wayne." She paused, waiting for his comment. But he said nothing. "I'm going to crash into the movies from the top," she continued with a note of defiance. She told him of the humiliating scene with Alice Delaware. "I'm through working as an extra."

"Where d'ye get that coat?" he asked. Livia stroked the ermine and giggled.

"It's all part of my plan. I hired it; it cost me $25 for the evening."

"I suppose you also hired that—that—" Bruce nodded his head in the direction of the bar. She laughed.

"Yes—he was a little cheaper—$10 for the evening. Oh, don't be so shocked. It's all very respectable. The escort bureau fires them if they get fresh or anything."

Bruce's jaw set in a hard line. But Livia refused to be offended.

"It's my money, isn't it?"

"The legacy?"

"Yes. What was the use of $1,500 in the bank? It was making the bank richer. I can use it to get a good movie job."

"Maybe."

"So," she continued lightly, "for as long as my money holds out I'm a wealthy society girl from the east. I have a car—they gave me a very special rate, and it's a beauty. I have a good wardrobe—furs I can hire, and the jewels—" she shook the three bracelets on her wrist—"they're phoney."

"You're crazy," said Bruce.

"What have I got to lose?"

"Fifteen hundred dollars. Where are you going with that gigolo?"

"To the Spotlight restaurant first. That's where the big-shots go, isn't it?"

"I wouldn't know. My salary as a stunt-man—"

"Please don't be like that, Bruce."

He stood up. "Antonio must be getting impatient."

The countess brightened again at sight of Bruce.

"Well, good-bye, Miss Clarkson—or is it Miss Wayne? Well, anyway, good-bye, Antonio," said the countess. "Come and see me some time—both of you." She hurried after Bruce.

"You're having dinner with me?" she pleaded with him.

"If you don't mind, I'd like to be excused." Bruce slammed the door of her car shut. "Take the countess home," he told the chauffeur and grinned at her expression of indignation.

He walked toward Hollywood. Livia she needed spanking. But she was able to take care of herself. And anyway, what was it to him?

He stopped at a drive-in and ordered a sandwich and coffee. He decided to drive back immediately to Lake Arrowhead. There was nothing for him to do in town anyway.

He went to his apartment and changed his clothes. It meant going out of his way, but he drove to the Spotlight restaurant

There were the usual photographers and the usual crowd at the long bar. He searched the green and silver restaurant. Livia was dancing with Antonio. She seemed happy enough and was laughing at something Antonio was whispering But Bruce was reluctant to leave.

He ordered some beer and drank it slowly, watching prominent motion picture people come in. An agent paused and said to Bruce·

"I thought you liked only the great open spaces?"

"That's right," replied Bruce. The agent wandered into the restaurant, his eyes seeking the important people he would make it his business to greet.

Johnny Einfeld and his wife, a good-looking, thin-faced society woman from New York, came in and halted when they saw Bruce.

"Aren't you on location?" said Einfeld.

"I'm on my way."

"You heard about this morning?" Bruce nodded. "That Delaware," said Einfeld vindictively. "Too bad for Livia. I was trying to help her. But I'm afraid she's off the list at Central Casting She's through as an extra."

"Yes, I suppose so. Well, I'm going now, Johnny. Nice to see you."

There was a clamor in the restaurant, and the bar was suddenly deserted A middle-aged man with the build of a football player was swaying drunkenly, shouting insults at Livia and her escort.

Bruce shouldered his way through the crowd His fist landed squarely on the jaw of the drunken man, whose legs folded as though they were made of India rubber. The crowd thickened around them.

"He said I took his wife from him," whimpered Antonio. "and then Miss Wayne told him he was drunk, and—" It was a wonderful break for the photographers. One of them asked Antonio.

"Who is she?"

"A society gal from the east" he told them "Veronica Wayne."

"Why did you do that?" Livia demanded furiously of Bruce.

"Why did I?" He was now as angry as Livia. "You wanted publicity, didn't you? Well, you got it." Livia was almost in tears "Don't worry," said Bruce, "this'll get your pictures in a lot of papers." He laughed contemptuously and left her

Yes, her picture was in the papers the next day. The drunk had once been a movie star. The incident made good newspaper reading – pretty girl, old-time star, handsome stunt-man defender. Livia writhed as she read the highly-colored stories.

She tried to comfort her uneasy heart. It was publicity--as Bruce had taunted her. But this meant she had lost him forever.

The telephone rang. It was the publicity man she had hired the day before.

"Say, you don't need a press agent," he said admiringly. She felt better, as though the fight had been her idea. "If I don't get you a movie contract by the end of the month you can fire me." he added.

"I'll probably have to," said Livia, but not until she had put the receiver down.

The next few weeks were a kaleidoscopic whirl - Santa Anita in the afternoon, Chasen's on Sunday nights; Ciro's on Thursdays and Saturdays; the Brown Derby for lunch; Victor Hugo's for cocktails, night-clubs. She went to all the important fashion shows and bought some of the more daring models. Her name appeared in print at least once every two days.

One evening one of the younger movie stars escorted Livia to the opening of a play at the Biltmore. He was besieged by a crowd of clamoring adolescent fans.

"Who's she?" Livia heard someone demand.

"Dunno, but we'd better get her autograph—just in case."

Livia signed her name hoping that the producer just ahead of her had eyes at the back of his head.

During this period Livia paid a brief visit to Vera and her husband. Her sister was delighted with the long, sleek, car and Livia's new clothes Livia was the bright one of the family.

"When will I see you in pictures?" asked Vera lovingly.

"Soon" bed her sister.

"How much are they paying you?" asked the more practical George Livia evaded his question and left shortly afterward.

The days were slipping by and still the film offers had not come through.

Millions of our allies must die.. unless you help!

Imagine if every single person in your street were starving—the friendly Joneses next door, the Reilly kids across the street, the gracefully-growing-old Elliotts on the corner.

Imagine if you can... no super markets, no drug stores, no doctors or nurses,—no, not even the friendly cloppity clop of the milkman's horse.

Yet this is the commonplace, day-by-day reality of living for millions of our Allies under total war—this and almost unendurable filth, misery and disease... all against an obligato of merciless bombing, fire, looting and rape.

In the name of common decency, of human brotherhood rather than generosity, these men, women and children—the Greeks, Russians, Chinese, Poles, Dutch, and British—must have your help now! Or as surely as winter follows fall, millions of them must die.

It's up to you to help keep the glorious spirit of victory flaming in the hearts of our fighting comrades, their women folk, their kids, their aged kin. We all must pitch-in to help get to these countries the kind of relief they need most—whether it be food or clothing, or both, seeds or sulfa drugs and other medicines, stoves and trucks or surgical instruments and anaesthesia.

Blessed relief is getting through to these people via organized channels. But more is needed—much more. Your contribution is a mighty weapon for democracy's armies. Give generously and give today to these soldiers of freedom, in and out of uniform, who have given and continue to give far more than they can ever receive from us.
